Game Increasing in Pennsylvania.

Game, song and insectivorous birds have increased very materially during the past year, according to the annual report of the Board of Game Commissioners. The benefit to the commonwealth, says the report, from an economic point of view is very marked.

"Ruffed grouse are more plentiful," states the commission. "Turkeys have had a good hatching season, and in sections of the state where they are found at all are more plentiful than usual. Quail appear to have increased all over the state, and in some sections they are very plentiful. There is no doubt at all about the very material increase in deer and bear and rabbits in that territory whereon they are located.

"Through this increase in game we feel that an incentive to outdoor exercise and recreation is supplied that cannot be secured through any other process. An experience in camp life and in the handling and caring for firearms is secured that is of very great worth to our citizens who indulge in hunting through which they as individuals, secure better health, and are therefore better fitted to fill the place allotted to each in his respective community."

The commission is in favor of placing all game laws under a single title, and the members believe in reasonable seasons for hunting game. They regret that so much of the land of the state has been denuded of timber and the consequent droughts and disappearance of fish from the streams and game from the woods. They also go on record as favoring a generous bounty for the killing of vermin.

Attached to the report of the commission is the annual report of Secretary Joseph Kalbfus, of the commission. Dr. Kalbfus recommends the placing of a dollar license upon all hunters and reports that the work of the commission has been carried on within the appropriation and that the returns of the department show that one-half of the amount of the appropriation has been returned to the State Treasury.

Dr. Kalbfus comments upon the awakened interest in the preservation of game and especially game birds, and he condemns certain animals which destroy bird life in Pennsylvania. In this connection he says:

"Many people are learning to place the house cat where it belongs, as one of our greatest bird destroyers, and to study all questions relative to birds carefully and from an economic point of view, instead of being actuated by impulse and sentiment alone as they have been for many years past."

The act of 1909 prohibiting aliens to hunt or to have firearms in their possession, says the secretary, has proven of inestimable value to the commonwealth and not only has it prevented foreigners from many crimes, but it has protected the game and has been an added reason for the increase in game in the state.

Low Grade Line of W. M. R. R.

That the W. M. extension to Connellsville, where the road will connect with the Vanderbilt lines—the New York Central system—will be in operation, with trains running from Pittsburg to Baltimore, by Sept. 1, was announced after a conference in the W. M. offices between President J. B. Carter and Chief Engineer A. W. Jones, of the Carter Construction Co.; Chief Engineer Pratt and Assistant Engineer Friend, of the W. M.

It was not expected that trains would be running before the middle of next December. Mr. Carter announced that January 1, 50 per cent. of the grading had been done between Cumberland and Connellsville.

It is understood that the W. M., under the New York Central alliance, will increase its terminal facilities in Baltimore shortly after the completion of the 88-mile link to about four times what they are at present. This should bring a tremendous quantity of business at present going to New York and Philadelphia.

It is said that the New York Central is ready to divert a large quantity not only of its export but of its import trade as well, as soon as the lines have been joined.

Plans have been made for the extension of the pier system in Baltimore to take care of the increased export and import business expected here when the new system is completed.

New Low Grade Line.

It is of interest in connection with the foregoing to note that the corps of surveyors now at work in the vicinity of Williamsport, Md., it is reliably understood, are working in the interest of the new low grade line for the W. M. from Williamsport to Baltimore. The corps is now south of Williamsport working on both sides of the route surveyed over a year ago. The survey, it was stated at the time, was satisfactory, a two per cent. grade being obtained.

It is unofficially understood that the W. M. will, after the completion of the Cumberland-Connellsville extension begin work on this new line from Williamsport to a point between Westminster and Deerfield. This line cuts off the mountain, an obstacle in the freight service the W. M. has been endeavoring to overcome for years, It is believed that they have at last succeeded. Persons who claim to know state that the route and plans for the new low grade line have been decided upon.

This situation presents the inquiry which towns along the present route will be up a tree as far as not being on the main line of the railroad.

Eczema Cure a Beauty Wash

Although D. D. D. Prescription has been recognized for years as the one remedy for Eczema, Psoriasis, and all other forms of skin diseases, it is now known that there is no other wash, even those used by the beauty specialists, that can compare with this mild liquid for cleansing the skin of pimples, blackheads, rash, and all similar skin affections.

For this reason alone, a bottle of D. D. D. should be kept on hand in every household. A trial 25c bottle will show you the merits of this great remedy as a complexion wash.

D. D. D. seems to remove the cause, what ever the trouble may be, cleansing the skin, and leaving it as soft, as smooth and clear as that of a healthy child.

JANUARY COURT CONCLUDED

VERDICT OF $100 FOR HENRY LITTLE VS. GETTYSBURG

Sentences Suspended of the McSherrystown Boys — Other Court Business

At the time of going to press last week the case of Henry Little vs. the Borough of Gettysburg was on trial. The plaintiff is the aged carpet weaver and having fallen alleged it was due to an obstruction which the town authorities should not have permitted. The evidence in the case was largely medical, Dr. H. M. Hartman, the physician of plaintiff, testifying as to treatment given plaintiff, and as part of the defense Drs. Henry Stewart and J. P. Dalbey testified to examination made of plaintiff at request of the borough authorities. The evidence was concluded on Wednesday, and the case by agreement was submitted to the jury without argument upon the charge of the Court. The plaintiff was represented by Chas. E. Stahle and J. L. Williams, Esqs., and defendant by Borough Attorney R. E. Wible, Esq. The jury was out but a short time and returned a verdict of $100 for the plaintiff.

This trial concluded the work of the January court except the sentencing on Saturday.

The case of Rocky Ridge Coal and Mining Company vs. John R. Bittinger, trading as Bittinger Lime Company, was expected to be tried and a jury was selected but case was later continued by reason of sickness of a witness.

The case of Edward F. Straley vs. Fannie Hartlaub and Frank Hartlaub in trespass and of Emory A. Jacoby vs. Frank Hartlaub for damages for an alleged slander were continued to the April court. The equity case between Straley and Hartlaub will be heard by the court on Feb. 10, which involves a road alleged to have been closed. then at the April court will come up the criminal charge between the parties, as well as the trespass and slander case.

On Saturday District Attorney Neely had the court make the following disposition of certain criminal cases·

Com. vs. George and Emma Tonsil charged with assault and battery by Ida Monroe, was continued.

Com. vs. John Nugent, charged with notorious indecency was continued.

Com. vs. John Doe, charged with being a common nuisance was nol prossed the information not disclosing any indictible offense.

Com. vs. Frank Shultz charged with burglary and Com. vs. Beulah Saylor charged with receiving stolen goods on information of Mervin VanDyke, was continued.

Com. vs. Joshua Patterson charged with horse stealing on information of Adam Bloom was continued.

Two cases were marked settled·

Com. vs. Frank Welk charged with assault and battery.

Com. vs. Calvin Mummert charged with fornication and bastardy.

The fornication and bastardy cases against Joseph Eline, William Fiscel and Titus E. Trostle were continued child not born in each case.

Adam M. Miller was allowed to draw out of court his share in estate of Elizabeth Longlitz.

On petition of the heirs of Edward Staley a mortgage securing dower was allowed to be satisfied and the Citizens' Trust Company of Gettysburg was appointed trustee of the fund.

In estate of Sophia Strausbaugh late of Hanover an order was granted for the private sale of real estate in Conewago township to Harry J. Strausbaugh.

Hanson W. Lightner of Cumberland township, Harvey Wehler of Hamilton township, and J. Frank March of Straban township, were appointed commissioners to inquire into propriety of dividing Huntington into election districts.

The American Bonding Co. filed its financial statement for 1910, in the Common Pleas, Orphans' Court and Quarter Sessions.

The five young men from McSherrystown, Charles Mummert, Preston Weaver, Harris Weaver, Cletus Orndorf and Daniel Reiley, who plead guilty to throwing gravel into the window of the basement of the parish school building were called up and after impressive admonition and instruction from Judge Swope, were put under probation for their good behavior for one year, subject to arrest at any time. Their act was probably the result more of thoughtlessness than of maliciousness. Upon their discharge, the prosecutor, Rev. Father Dailey shook hands with each of them in the court room. It is hoped this incident is now closed and that these young defendants will profit by the lesson.

The report of Hon. George J. Benner as auditor of the public accounts, was filed.

In the divorce case of Fannie A. Starr vs. Francis A. Starr, an attachment was issued against the husband, living in Philadelphia, for contempt in not obeying the order of Court for the payment of $200, alimony, etc., the writ being returnable February 5th.

Maria Little, administratrix of estate of Israel Little, deceased was granted an order for the sale of the real estate in Seven Stars, the old hotel property.

In the foreign attachment, H. J. Gulden vs. Fillmore Peters, a resident of Kansas, on petition of Sheriff Fiscel, order of publication was made.

Dr. W. Edgar Holland, executor of the will of James Irvine, deceased, was discharged, upon his own petition.

The case against Charles Sowers, charged with the desertion of his wife was heard. The circumstances were peculiar. The wife was taken to the almshouse after being turned away from the defendant's home in Bendersville and a child born soon after at the former place. It was attempted unsuccessfully to bring into question the paternity of the child, upon which the defense rested and failed, the Court ruling that the marriage of the two, legitimated the child. The man was ordered to pay $2.50 a week and give security, which he did not do, but went to jail.

The Citizens' Trust Company of Gettysburg was appointed guardian of Stella E. Fleshman, minor child of Francis L. Fleshman, deceased.

Wm. Hersh, Esq., was appointed auditor to dispose of exceptions and report distribution of the balance in the hands of the executors of Salome Moul, late of East Berlin.

Hurt by Circular Saw

Wm. J. Stansbury, an employee of the Reaser Furniture Factory got his right hand against a circular saw on Monday morning and four fingers were badly cut. It is feared that a portion of the index finger will have to be amputated.

—The Gettysburg Fire Engine Co., held their annual banquet on last Wednesday evening in the rooms of the I. O. of A. There were speeches by Hon. Wm. H. Tipton and E. P. Miller preceding the feasting, with music by St. James Orchestra, and the banquet was voted one of the best ever held.

—The Thomas place on Wolf Hill was destroyed by fire on Sunday night.

THE HARVEST OF DEATH

Edward McCleary Dies from result of Amputation of Leg 20 Years Ago.

ADAM PFOUTZ died on last Saturday morning at his home on Stevens St., this place, aged 69 years and 9 months. He was a native of Gettysburg, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Adam Pfoutz, the former being a native of Germany. For a generation the deceased was janitor at Gettysburg College and familiarly known to hundreds of students as "Jan" and "Gov" and they possessed an affection for him that will linger as long as life lasts. He was good nature itself to all the boys, patient and long suffering and when he pretended to be cross at some pranks of the boys it was always with a twinkle in his eye and a smile on his lips. It is a delightful memory to have seen him patiently pick the locks of recitation room doors after they had been tightly plugged, or to see him unload a recitation room of the grass cut on the campus which had taken the boys half the night to carry into the room. And when a boy was ill it was "Jan" who was always ready to do all in his power, and there are many many students who will dearly cherish to the end of their days the memory of his acts of kindness. He was retired some years ago by the college on a pension for his faithful services. He married Miss Katharine Klingle and his wife and four children preceded him to the grave. He had no near relatives. The funeral was held on Monday afternoon, services by his pastor, Rev. J. B. Baker, interment in Evergreen cemetery.

EDWARD C. MCCLEARY died on Monday morning at his home on York street, aged 51 years, 4 months and 9 days. He had met with an accident about twenty years ago, having been thrown from a horse and his left leg was so mangled that it had to be amputated. The remaining part of leg gave him much pain from time to time and some weeks ago gangrene developed resulting in his death. For a number of years Mr. McCleary was tipstaff or doorkeeper at the court house. The funeral will be held on Thursday afternoon at 1 o'clock and interment will be made at Flohr's cemetery. He leaves a wife, who was Miss Shepard of Franklin township, and one daugnter, Miss Mabel McCleary.

MRS. SUSAN R. REBERT, widow of James A. Rebert, died on Monday morning at the home of her daughter Mrs. John Geyer, in Cumberland township, aged 66 years, 4 months and 2 days. Death followed an illness of about three weeks in which there was a complication of diseases. She was a daughter of the late Wm. H. Wierman of Cumberland township and had a wide circle of friends and acquaintances who held her in highest esteem. Her husband died four years ago. The funeral will be held Thursday afternoon at the house and interment will be made at Flohr's cemetery. She leaves one daughter and three sons, Mrs. John Geyer of Cumberland township, William G. Rebert of Cashtown, H. P. Rebert and Charles Rebert of Philadelphia. Three sisters and two brothers survive, Mrs. R. Wm. Bream, Mrs. J. O. Blocher, Miss Alice E. Wierman and Joseph H. Wierman of this place, and Wm. H. Wierman of York.

MICHAEL REILEY, a well-known resident of Reading, died at his home in that place Sunday morning, Jan. 22, aged 83 years and 10 months. Death was due to the infirmities of age, hastened by heart trouble. He had been ill for several months. Mr. Reiley was a native of Franklin county, spent his young manhood in Adams county, and almost 65 years ago moved to Reading, where, with except four years in Pottsville, he lived up to the time of his death. He was a cabinet maker by trade, having served his apprenticeship at Emmitsburg, Md. When he came to Reading he took up railroading, and later became an engineer, running for 12 years on the main line. After quitting the road he entered the Reading Company's shops, where he was employed until nearly 17 years ago, when he retired. Deceased was a member of the St. James Lutheran church, of the Lily of the Valley Lodge I. O. O. F., Pottsville, and of Esther Lodge No. 4, Daughters of Rebekah, I. O. O. F., of Reading. There remain his wife, whose maiden name was Annie Phleger, a son, John H. Reiley, for years connected with the Consumers' Gas Company, a daughter, Miss Loretta C. Reiley, a teacher in the public schools and one brother, A. B. Reiley of Gettysburg.

GEO. W. YOUNT died on Jan. 21 at his home in Littlestown, aged 73 years and 4 days. He received a stroke of apoplexy on Jan. 9th which was the direct cause of his death. A few minutes before the end he asked for his wife and was told that she was resting. He insisted he must see her and she was aroused and went to his bedside and he held out his hand and said, "Well, Mamma I'm going," immediately passed away. He was born at McKnightstown and in 1851 went to Littlestown and learned the trade of harness making, which he followed to the time of his death. In 1861 he was married to Miss Henrietta Barker, a daughter of the late Jos. and Cassia Barker of Littlestown. He was a respected member of St. Paul's

JACOB B. HEIGES of York, died on Jan. 19, from burns received from the flames flaring out of a furnace door and igniting his clothing at the York Chemical Works. He was a native of Adams county and aged 67 years. The funeral was held on Monday of last week and interment made at the Lutheran Bermudian church. He leaves a wife and six children.

DAVID A. DICE died suddenly at his home in York on last Wednesday. At the close of the noon meal he was seen to fall forward and physicians being summoned pronounced death as due to heart trouble. He was a well known artist of York. He was a prominent member of the York Art Club, his contributions to the club being the best on exhibition in the club's rooms. He was a frequent contributor to the York papers and the evening before he died he arranged with the 'York Gazette' for a series of articles on "Democracy in Government," in which he was a strong believer. He came of a Franklin county family and married a Miss Smiley of this county. His wife is a sister of J. A. Smiley of Gettysburg and J. M. Smiley of East Berlin. Mrs. M. S. Yohe, Mrs. Milton Remmel and Miss Margaret Smiley of this place attended the funeral on last Saturday. Deceased leaves a wife and one son, W. A. Dice, in charge of the book department of the Wiest Department Store, York.

MISS SARAH ELLA GILLILAND died at her home in this place on last Wednesday morning after a short illness in her 70th year. She was born in Straban township, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Flemming Gilliland. She spent the greater part of her life in this place where she had many friends The funeral was held on last Friday afternoon, services being held in the Presbyterian church by Rev. D. W. Woods, and interment in the Evergreen cemetery. She is survived by one brother, Samuel Gilliland of Straban township.

She had her home with her brother John, who died two months ago.

EMANUEL S. STAMBAUGH, after an illness of six days, died at his home, in Penn township, York county, Thursday, Jan 26, from a complication of diseases. He was aged 76 yrs. Deceased is survived by his wife: six sons—Henry and Emanuel S. R. Stambaugh, of Berwick township, Adams county: Lewis, of Hagerstown, Md.: Adam, of Bradford, Pa.: George, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and Emory, of Penn township: two daughters—Mrs. Amelia Laughman, of Berwick township, Adams county, and Mrs. Mary Mummert, of Penn township. He is also survived by two brothers, Henry Stambaugh, of Smith's Station, York Co., and Amos Stambaugh, of Astoria, Illinois, and two sisters, Mrs. Samuel Wildasin and Mrs. Cecelia Meckley of Hanover. Funeral Monday, Jan. 30. Interment in the cemetery at Barr's Meeting house.

MISS RHUHANNA ROHRBAUGH, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Rohrbaugh, of Littlestown, died at her home in York Saturday, Jan. 21st, from Bright's disease, aged 38 years, 5 months and 19 days. The remains were taken to Littlestown the following Monday and the funeral service held Monday afternoon. Interment at Christ Church, Rev. F. S. Lindaman, D. D., officiating. She is survived by her parents, two sons, several sisters and brothers.

JACOB GRINER, died on Saturday night, Jan. 21st, at the home of his sister, Mrs. Crum, of Tyrone township from a paralytic stroke, aged 65 years. The funeral services were held last Tuesday morning with interment at the Upper Bermudian church, Rev. Harvey Bickle conducting the services. He was a bachelor and is survived by four sisters and one brother. Mrs. Crum, Tyrone township: Mrs. Bolen, Gardners station: Mrs. Cleavers, Carlisle: Mrs. William Cully, York and Silas Griner, of the west.

HARRY CASHMAN, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Cashman of Aspers, died last Wednesday, aged 15 years, 11 months and 14 days. The funeral was on last Saturday, interment at Biglerville. He is survived by his parents and one sister, Ruth Cashman.

WILLIAM R. BEATTY of Baltimore died on Monday at the advanced age of 83 years. His life was typical of many Americans. He started in life as a poor boy working at the Catoctin Furnace in Frederick County, Md. Having learned the iron trade he started a foundry in Baltimore, became a successful business man of that city and accumulated considerable wealth. He was attached to this part of the country and when he began to take life easy he came here and bought a farm on the western slope of Keckler's hill, spending many summers here and always speaking delightedly of this country. He was very interesting man and was highly respected not only in the business world of Baltimore but by every one who knew him in this county. He leaves several children, among them a son Harry J. Beatty of West Middle St. this place.

Resident Painfully Bruised

Miss C. M. W. Foster of this place, who has been making her home this winter with Mr. and Mrs. George Meyer of Morrellville, near Johnstown, has been suffering considerable pain the past few days, says a recent issue of the Johnstown Democrat, as a result of an injury sustained in an unusual manner. Using a second match when lighting a small gas stove in her room an accumulation of the inflammable stuff exploded. The resultant burst of flame frightened Miss Foster, and in jumping backwards she fell against a metal bed. The physicians in attendance found nothing more serious than bruises. Miss Foster is a noted W. C. T. U. worker and has been engaged in temperance activities all her life.

—The College Minstrels on last Tuesday evening proved a success, and as it was the first entertainment of the kind ever given by the college boys will likely be an annual feature of College life.

—Miss Annie Danner has gone to visit friends in Baltimore.

WE are getting ready for our annual Inventory, which begins in a week or ten days. Going over the entire stock now, getting out the odds and ends of everything—making new prices on much that must be sold before stock taking. It is so much easier to count actual money than it is to count figures on a book.

It is impossible to give much of an idea here of what we are willing to do to get our stock in condition—unless you visit the store you cannot fully know. Every department shows lots of goods at lowest prices. We can only name a few items here.

About 25 Woman's and Misses' Coats, Castor and Tan Kersey, a few Blacks, carried over from 1909 and 1910, were $7.50 to $15.00, your choice for $3.00.

About 50 Children's Coats, sizes 8 to 12 years. An opportunity for money saving for another year, if you feel that you cannot get full worth out of them this season. Good heavy cloths, variety of colors.

Were $3.00 to $4.00 at $1.50
Were 4.00 to 6.00 at 2.50
Were 6.00 to 7.50 at 4.00

We have gone over our big stock of Muslin Underwear (not made up for a White Sale) and taken from it all that was in any way mussed from handling or showing, and have put on it a quick selling price which will save you a full fourth and more on Gowns, Corset Covers and Muslin Drawers, (No Skirts).

Ladies' Suits, still quite an assortment, all of which have had a heavy price cut, but we have taken out of them a lot of about 25 Suits, Manish materials and Fancy Worsteds, were $20 to $22.50 and made the price $5, $6, $7.

All the balance of our Newest Black and Colored Suits---One Half Price

About 12 Black and Oxford Kersey Coats. Specially cut for short stout women, sizes ranging from 41 to 50 inch bust measure, to be closed at $8.90.

About 12 Elegant, 50 inch long, Seal Plush Coats, at a mark down to—
$16.50 from $25.00
18.50 from 27.50
Beautiful lining, Elegantly made, Mostly Large Sizes

A Few Heavy Fancy Cloth Coats, One-Half Price.

About 20 Black Net covered over Taffeta Waists, were $5.75, $6.50 to $7.00, good styles and a fair assortment of sizes—except 36—at $2.98 and $3.98.

Black Taffeta and a few Messaline Waists, (a manufacturer's samples). Elegantly made, just in, sizes 34, 36 and 38. For early comers as there will be no more. Prices $1.98 $2.19. Worth double that price.

The Ready-to-Wear Department is full of Marked Down Goods of every Character

Special Prices on Entire Stock of Black Petticoats until February First. Such as

$1.25 goods for 90 cts.
2.00 goods for $1.50 and so on.

Big Doe Run to Death by Dogs.

John Fritz, of near Cashtown, rescued a large doe from dogs, which had chased it out of South Mountain, and placed it in his stable. Unfortunately, the pretty animal died soon afterward from the wounds inflicted by its pursurers. As soon as Mr. Fritz saw the nearly exhausted and frightened animal he drove off the dogs, which were strange ones and had evidently come some distance. It is believed that they are the same as those which have been killing deer for the past few weeks in the Caledonia region. The doe was placed in the stable by Mr. Fritz and State Game Commissioner Kalbfus informed. He instructed Mr. Fritz to dispose of the animal as he saw fit in case it died. The deer had been badly bitten and bruised and after it died, the carcass was buried.

Going over the entire stock now, getting out the odds and ends of everything—making new prices on much that must be sold before stock taking. It is so much easier to count actual money than it is to count figures on a book.

It is impossible to give much of an idea here of what we are willing to do to get our stock in condition—unless you visit the store you cannot fully know. Every department shows lots of goods at lowest prices. We can only name a few items here.

About 25 Woman's and Misses' Coats, Castor and Tan Kersey, a few Blacks, carried over from 1909 and 1910, were $7.50 to $15.00, your choice for $3.00.

About 50 Children's Coats, sizes 8 to 12 years. An opportunity for money saving for another year, if you feel that you cannot get full worth out of them this season. Good heavy cloths, variety of colors.

Were $3.00 to $4.00 at $1.50
Were 4.00 to 6.00 at 2.50
Were 6.00 to 7.50 at 4.00

We have gone over our big stock of Muslin Underwear (not made up for a White Sale) and taken from it all that was in any way mussed from handling or showing, and have put on it a quick selling price which will save you a full fourth and more on Gowns, Corset Covers and Muslin Drawers, (No Skirts).

Ladies' Suits, still quite an assortment, all of which have had a heavy price cut, but we have taken out of them a lot of about 25 Suits, Manish materials and Fancy Worsteds, were $20 to $22.50 and made the price $5, $6, $7.

All the balance of our Newest Black and Colored Suits---One Half Price

About 12 Black and Oxford Kersey Coats. Specially cut for short stout women, sizes ranging from 41 to 50 inch bust measure, to be closed at $8.90.

About 12 Elegant, 50 inch long, Seal Plush Coats, at a mark down to—
$16.50 from $25.00
18.50 from 27.50
Beautiful lining, Elegantly made, Mostly Large Sizes

A Few Heavy Fancy Cloth Coats, One-Half Price.

About 20 Black Net covered over Taffeta Waists, were $5.75, $6.50 to $7.00, good styles and a fair assortment of sizes—except 36—at $2.98 and $3.98.

Black Taffeta and a few Messaline Waists, (a manufacturer's samples). Elegantly made, just in, sizes 34, 36 and 38. For early comers as there will be no more. Prices $1.98 $2.19. Worth double that price.

The Ready-to-Wear Department is full of Marked Down Goods of every Character

Special Prices on Entire Stock of Black Petticoats until February First. Such as

$1.25 goods for 90 cts.
2.00 goods for $1.50 and so on.

Big Doe Run to Death by Dogs.

John Fritz, of near Cashtown, rescued a large doe from dogs, which had chased it out of South Mountain, and placed it in his stable. Unfortunately, the pretty animal died soon afterward from the wounds inflicted by its pursurers. As soon as Mr. Fritz saw the nearly exhausted and frightened animal he drove off the dogs, which were strange ones and had evidently come some distance. It is believed that they are the same as those which have been killing deer for the past few weeks in the Caledonia region. The doe was placed in the stable by Mr. Fritz and State Game Commissioner Kalbfus informed. He instructed Mr. Fritz to dispose of the animal as he saw fit in case it died. The deer had been badly bitten and bruised and after it died, the carcass was buried.

Senator Herbst on State Legislation.

Following is an interview with State Senator Herbst published in the "Reading Herald":

"After two weeks with the present legislature I am convinced that never before has the so-called Republican machine of Pennsylvania been so well equipped to do what it pleases. Hitherto during my ten years' experience there has always been a cohesive aggressive minority even if at times small, yet always alert and fighting together for principles, policies and measures for the public good.

"This year the minority, small enough, if it should work together, presents the deplorable condition of a camp divided against itself, three or four squads, almost more intent upon knifing each other than upon facing a solid front to the enemy. This, of course, would be merely a pitifully ridiculous spectacle were it not for the fearful consequences to the people of the State which may follow.

"In the present weakened condition of the minority there is no reason why any vicious legislation contemplated shall not be pushed through with well oiled smoothness and ball-bearing celerity.

"Rippers under the plausible guise of commission government. Bond issues as an excuse for good roads. Increased taxation to be called by the title of equalization of taxation. School codes ostensibly for the betterment of what we all favor, in reality to add a State school machine to the already all powerful political machine, and increase the taxation of the people already overburdened by authorizing additional loans. Increase in the force of office holders and State inspectors who already are as numerous as the proverbial locusts of Egypt, increase in the salaries of these and our few overworked judges, half of whom are dying of ennui, and the inhalation of salt air at Atlantic City: these are a few things only of what may be expected judging the future by the past.

"Pinch bills—what a field for these among the ambitious embryonic statesmen who will only be too happy to introduce them, and who have been so placid on committees that they will consider it a great honor to fight for them, while the shrewd old managers of the machine will innocently rake in the shekels to kill them. These will be fine campaign contributions not mentioned in the Roberts' Corrupt Practices law.

"I have some hope that after a little more reflection Democrats, Keystone Democrats and Keystone Republicans, may lay aside their personal politics and get together on public policies and measures. At present the outlook is dark. I do not know whither we are going, but I do know that we are going and may it be towards a better understanding is my earnest wish.

"As to the Democratic party in Pennsylvania I have learned through inquiry from all sections of the State that radical reorganization is necessary. It dare not be delayed if the county tickets in most of our few remaining Democratic counties are to be saved this fall. It is not a question of who is to be blamed, or who is not to be blamed. It is a condition of affairs that cannot be denied. Our State organization as at present constituted has lost the confidence of the rank and file. The State committee should meet promptly and resignations should be made patriotically and men of the standing and calibre of Congressman Palmer should be given the helm. I believe in the principles of my party, and in persons, am not a hero worshipper, and therefore, hope that the Democratic party in Republican Pennsylvania will again be so marshalled as to become at least a respectable minority party ready to keep step with its triumphant brethren in other states."

Decorated by Kaiser

Word has reached Mrs. John O. Evjen, wife of the professor of church history in Augsburg seminary, Minneapolis, formerly professor of English Bible at Gettysburg College that Emperor William II has conferred upon her father, Wilhelm Kretschmann of Berlin, the "Preussicher Kronenorden Vierte Klasse." Receiving this order is a rare distinction. Mr. Kretschmann has an international reputation as a horticulturist and is the possessor of twenty-five other medals, has spent much of his time in beautifying the park in which is located the Pankow school, one of the largest educational institutions of Berlin. The event took place at the dedication of the school, which was erected at a cost of 4,000,000 marks.

EAST BERLIN.

The farmers of this section have been busy during the last few weeks hauling wheat to the East Berlin Milling Company. The mill runs day and night, and ships two car loads of flour every week, and keep on hand a surplus of from 5,000 to 10,000 bushels.

Elder C. D. Bonsach of Union Bridge, Maryland, started a series of meetings last Sunday evening in the Brethren meeting house. The meetings will continue every evening for two weeks. E. L. S.

Utterly Wretched

Nervous Prostration Long Endured Before Remedy was Found.

Miss Minerva Remlinger, Upper Bern, Pa., writes: "For several years I had nervous prostration, and was utterly wretched. I lived on bread and beef tea because my stomach would not retain anything else. I took many remedies, but obtained no relief until I took Hood's Sarsaparilla, when I began to gain at once. Am now cured."

Pure, rich blood makes good, strong nerves, and this is why Hood's Sarsaparilla, which purifies and enriches the blood, cures so many nervous troubles.

Get it today in usual liquid form or chocolated tablets called Sarsatabs.

Senator Herbst on State Legislation.

Following is an interview with State Senator Herbst published in the "Reading Herald":

"After two weeks with the present legislature I am convinced that never before has the so-called Republican machine of Pennsylvania been so well equipped to do what it pleases. Hitherto during my ten years' experience there has always been a cohesive aggressive minority even if at times small, yet always alert and fighting together for principles, policies and measures for the public good.

"This year the minority, small enough, if it should work together, presents the deplorable condition of a camp divided against itself, three or four squads, almost more intent upon knifing each other than upon facing a solid front to the enemy. This, of course, would be merely a pitifully ridiculous spectacle were it not for the fearful consequences to the people of the State which may follow.

"In the present weakened condition of the minority there is no reason why and vicious legislation contemplated shall not be pushed through with well oiled smoothness and ball-bearing celerity.

"Rippers under the plausible guise of commission government. Bond issues as an excuse for good roads. Increased taxation to be called by the title of equalization of taxation. School codes ostensibly for the betterment of what we all favor, in reality to add a State school machine to the already all powerful political machine, and increase the taxation of the people already overburdened by authorizing additional loans. Increase in the force of office holders and State inspectors who already are as numerous as the proverbial locusts of Egypt, increase in the salaries of these and our few overworked judges, half of whom are dying of ennui, and the inhalation of salt air at Atlantic City; these are a few things only of what may be expected judging the future by the past.

"Pinch bills—what a field for these among the ambitious embryonic statesmen who will only be too happy to introduce them, and who have been so placid on committees that they will consider it a great honor to fight for them, while the shrewd old managers of the machine will innocently rake in the shekels to kill them. These will be fine campaign contributions not mentioned in the Roberts' Corrupt Practices law.

"I have some hope that after a little more reflection Democrats, Keystone Democrats and Keystone Republicans, may lay aside their personal politics and get together on public policies and measures. At present the outlook is dark. I do not know whither we are going, but I do know that we are going and may it be towards a better understanding is my earnest wish.

"As to the Democratic party in Pennsylvania I have learned through inquiry from all sections of the State that radical reorganization is necessary. It dare not be delayed if the county tickets in most of our few remaining Democratic counties are to be saved this fall. It is not a question of who is to be blamed, or who is not to be blamed. It is a condition of affairs that cannot be denied. Our State organization as at present constituted has lost the confidence of the rank and file. The State committee should meet promptly and resignations should be made patriotically and men of the standing and calibre of Congressman Palmer should be given the helm. I believe in the principles of my party, and in persons, am not a hero worshipper, and therefore hope that the Democratic party in Republican Pennsylvania will again be so marshalled as to become at least a respectable minority party ready to keep step with its triumphant brethren in other states."

Word has reached Mrs. John O. Evjeu, wife of the professor of church history in Augsburg seminary, Minneapolis, formerly professor of English Bible at Gettysburg College that Emperor William II has conferred upon her father, Wilhelm Kretschmann of Berlin, the "Preussicher Kronenorden Vierte Klasse." Receiving this order is a rare distinction. Mr. Kretschmann has an international reputation as a horticulturist and is the possessor of twenty-five other medals, has spent much of his time in beautifying the park in which is located the Pankow school, one of the largest educational institutions of Berlin. The event took place at the dedication of the school, which was erected at a cost of 4,000,000 marks.

EAST BERLIN.

The farmers of this section have been busy during the last few weeks hauling wheat to the East Berlin Milling Company. The mill runs day and night, and ships two car loads of flour every week, and keep on hand a surplus of from 8,000 to 10,000 bushels.

Elder C. D. Bonsack of Union Bridge, Maryland, started a series of meetings last Sunday evening in the Brethren meeting house. The meetings will continue every evening for two weeks.

Utterly Wretched

Nervous Prostration Long Endured Before Remedy was Found.

Miss Minerva Reminger, Upper Dern, Pa., writes: "For several years I had nervous prostration, and was utterly wretched. I lived on bread and beef tea because my stomach would not retain anything else. I took many medicines, but obtained no relief until I took Hood's Sarsaparilla, when I began to gain at once. Am now cured."

Pure, rich blood makes good, strong nerves, and this is why Hood's Sarsaparilla, which purifies and enriches the blood, cures so many nervous troubles.

Get it today. Sarsatabs.

The Greatest Offer Ever Made to Stock Feeders

Dr. Hess Stock Food on 3 Months Trial

From the manufacturer's written guarantee and the untiring praise it is receiving from our customers we are doubly sure that it is, without a single exception, the best Stock Food or tonic ever produced and at a price that you can afford to feed it regularly.

Now here is our proposition: We will supply you with sufficient Dr. Hess Stock Food to feed your animals twice a day for three months; we will supply you with 25 lbs. or one ton, then if at the end of three months you are not absolutely sure that it has paid you to feed Dr. Hess Stock Food, that is, if your animals fed for market have not been more thrifty, your other stock in better state of health return to us the empty package and we will refund every cent you have paid us.

Here are the prices:

500 lbs. for $25.00
Or 100 lbs. at the same rate, $5.00
Or 25 lb. pail at $1.60

There is not a farmer or feeder in this community that can afford to miss this liberal proposition.

GILSON'S LITTLE GIRL

By LULU JOHNSON

[Copyrighted, 1908, by E. C. Parcells.]

"My little girl," Gilson called her to himself, and of all in the human tide that twice a day swept through the gates of that section of the concourse devoted to the suburban traffic the gateman liked best the little blue eyed girl. She reminded him so strongly of that other little blue eyed girl who in a happier day had greeted his comings and goings and had called him "father."

That was before the tunnel wreck three years back, when they had carried her and her mother home—two victims of the worst disaster the road had ever known.

The claim agent had learned that Gilson was without work and had settled the damage claimed by providing him with a life position as gateman on the big station. Ever since then Thomas Gilson had watched the tide of humanity ebb and flow through the iron gates and had found solitude in the crowd.

Until the blue eyed girl had come, not quite three months before, he had watched indifferently the hurrying throng. The busy clicking of his punch kept time to the dull monotone of the announcer's megaphonic voice.

Then one night he glanced up into the face of a girl so like his own dead daughter that his punch dropped from his nerveless hands, and he held them forth yearningly if unconsciously.

The ring of the metal on the concrete pavement roused him. His hands dropped to his side, and he took up his dull routine of inspecting tickets, but the grimy train shed, with its smoke stained walls and its wastes of cinder bed tracks, held a new interest for him.

The monthly ticket which she presented was brand new and proclaimed her a recruit to the army of workers who daily took their places in the city's commercial field, and he knew that each night he should see her come hurrying down the concourse toward the gate.

Later, when she learned that the regular commuters never displayed their tickets, she would perhaps give him the little nod and smile of friendly recognition that the more experienced always vouchsafed the guardian of the gate. Gilson's memory for faces was remarkable. He knew all of the commuters by sight and had a nod for each.

It was not long before Gilson "got her trains." She came in on the 8:27, and every night she hurried to catch the 6:45. Sometimes she was late and missed that train, having to wait for the 7:58 and thereby missing also her dinner.

She never went out for dinner when she missed the earlier train, but sat in the great marble waiting room. Gilson, quick to deduce, knew that the money she earned was so sorely needed at home that she could not spare the sum that would buy an extra meal in town.

The old gateman did not go on duty until 9 o'clock in the morning, but he was always there now at 8:27, standing by the exit gate when the suburban trains came rolling in, and that was how he came to know that Metcalf was becoming interested in her.

Usually they came together down the platform, and only a glance at the girl's face was needed to tell that she liked Metcalf. Later on Metcalf took to going out on the 6:45 instead on the 6:45, which was an express and stopped only at the more important stations. No matchmaking mother ever watched the social progress of her daughter with greater solicitude than did Gilson watch the growth of love between Metcalf and Miss Traynor.

He had known Metcalf (he had learned the names on the commutation tickets) ever since he had come to the station. Metcalf seemed a nice, steady going young fellow, for he seldom waited over until the theater train, and each morning his eye was clear and his hand steady. His appearance betokened his prosperity, and Gilson rejoiced that his little girl was making so good a match.

Then came the day when the little girl came down the platform by herself, her head held high and her cheeks flaming. Metcalf lingered in the rear, and he, too, was flushed and angry. Gilson's heart was troubled, though he tried to tell himself that all would be made smooth that night.

But it was not made smooth. Metcalf did not appear until just in time for the 7:03, and there were traces of tears on the little girl's face as she passed through the gate to take the 6:45.

Once during the week they both came in by the same train, but Metcalf was in the smoker and the little girl was in the last car.

She tried very hard to look as though she did not care, but Gilson's sharp eyes could see the change, and he worried so that he let a fussy old lady take the next accommodation in the belief that it was the through express, which fact was duly reported to headquarters and resulted in Gilson's being forced to economize for a week to cover his fine.

Then came the night when the little girl, hurrying to catch her train, found the gate shut just as she approached.

"You are mean!" she cried, with a stamp of her tiny foot. "I could have made it easy."

"Orders to close the gate on signal," reminded Gilson stolidly.

"But the train had not started to move," she stormed, pointing to the tracks.

"I'm sorry"—Gilson's voice was full of apparent concern—"orders are to close the gate on signal."

"I've gone through lots of times," she reminded him. "They don't start until the passengers are all on. Often I've just made it. You used to be obliging. Now I shall have to wait for the 7:58; more than an hour. I shall report you to the office."

"Duty," murmured Gilson, trying to look properly regretful, for he saw Metcalf passing through the swinging doors of the waiting room.

"I shall report you just the same," declared the little girl as she turned away to come face to face with Metcalf.

"Lost your train?" cried Metcalf. "That is a shame! The service on this road is a disgrace. There is not another train that stops at your station for over an hour."

"I am not in the habit of discussing my inconveniences with strangers," declared the little girl, with a toss of her head, as she moved away.

Metcalf followed, and as Gilson moved over to the other gate where the express was made up he smiled in satisfaction, for had he not heard Metcalf declare that, angry or no, she must come across the street for a cup of tea and a bite to eat?

The hour had nearly expired before they came into the concourse again, and Gilson's face fairly glowed as he caught the look of happiness in their eyes.

The train had been called, and the gate was open, but the little girl did not pass through.

"You did it on purpose," she accused smilingly as she laid a gentle hand on Gilson's sleeve. "And to think that I threatened to report you! You must have thought me a little cat."

"Duty to close the gate when the signal is given," said Gilson mechanically, but the little girl saw only the twinkle in his eyes, and she raised herself upon the tips of her little patent leathers.

"It's all right again, thanks to you," she whispered. "We will be married after Easter, and you must come to the wedding."

Blushingly she hurried through the gate. Metcalf pressed the toil worn hands as he followed after, and to Gilson, watching them go down the platform through the film of glad tears that veiled his eyes, it seemed that the clanging of bells, the hiss and roar of escaping steam and the babel of cries resolved into one grand wedding march for "his little girl."

Oddities of Alcoholism.

Anecdotes of alcoholism were being narrated by a little group of physicians.

"One of my alcoholic patients steals when drunk," said a Philadelphian. "You should see the trophies he brings home. His valet is continually sneaking off of mornings with great parcels—overcoats, umbrellas, silver spoons, clocks—that his master, trembling in fear of arrest, has begged him to get rid of somehow."

"I have patients," said a New York specialist in dipsomania, "who in their intoxication steal only particular things. One man, an agnostic, steals Bibles. A woman steals gimlets. A young spinster steals baby things—little shoes and frocks, bottles and rattles, once even a perambulator."

"I had a case, an old lady," said a Kansan, "that I had worked over seventeen years—a hopeless case, it seemed. But she lost her money, and then they began to arrest her as a 'common drunk.' Well, after she had been arrested a dozen times or so the magistrate said he was tired of seeing her about and instructed the police to take her to the river whenever they found her drunk and give her a cold dip. By Jove, that cured her. Two cold dips cured her. She has been sober now, my old patient, almost three years."—Minneapolis Journal.

A World of Half Built People.

The world is full of half built people. If any one doubts this, let him or her visit a Turkish bath and note the number of people who are flat in the chest, round in the back, ponderous as to paunch and heavy in the jowl—people with outstanding shoulder blades and flat feet.

Out of a thousand people in this country there could be found scarcely three who had really fine figures. I make this statement advisedly after many years of careful observation. And why is this so? Why are there so few people in this country, in the civilized world, who have bodies that are not a travesty of him in whose image they are supposed to be created?

The reasons are many, but may be grouped under one phrase—unhygienic and unwholesome conditions of living. Among these conditions may be mentioned dietary errors—food that is excessive in quantity, variety or frequency as to meals and food taken under improper conditions either of mind or body.—W. R. C. Latson, M. D., in Outing Magazine.

How to Get Poorer Quicker.

We hear a great deal about get-rich-quick schemes, but if you want to get poor quick go into Wall street without a level head or a lot of experience, play the races, take a flier in the schemes you see advertised, in mines and oils and real estate—not that they are all bad, but most of them are not good. Some time ago a New York man discharged a valuable employee because he played the races. When asked if he thought gambling wrong, he said:

"It isn't so much that, but I am convinced that a man who would make the loose, one sided contract required by a bookmaker is not competent to take care of his own interests or those of anybody else."—Success Magazine

Quite In Character.

The late William Terriss, who for many years was invariably the hero in the dramas produced at the Adelphi theater, London, seems to have been in nice accord with the characters he played. One day, writes Ellen Terry in her book, "The Story of My Life," he came into the theater soaked.

"Is it raining, Terriss?" asked some one, who noticed that he was wet.

"Looks like it, doesn't it?" said Terriss carelessly.

Later it came out that he had jumped off a penny steamboat into the Thames and saved a little girl's life.

Long Lived Fish.

Fishes, especially the larger species, live a very long time. According to Bacon, eels live fifty years. Carp have been known to exist at least 150 years, while dolphins, sturgeons and sharks live more than a century and attain huge size. A pike caught at Kaiserslautern, Germany, in 1497 was nineteen feet long and weighed 350 pounds. It bore in its gills a copper ring with an inscription stating that it had been put in the pond of Lauren by order of the Emperor Frederick II.—that is, 261 years before.

An Impossible Combination.

They were talking of the strange sights to be seen in a great city, and one man paid his tribute to New York. "I don't believe one of you could think of any combination of circumstances that hasn't at some time occurred on the streets there," he said.

"I reckon I know of one that's never occurred there," said Hiram Fowle.

"What's that?" asked the other.

"I guess," said Hiram slowly, "that you've never seen nor ever will see a brass band going in one direction an' the heft of the folks going the other."—Youth's Companion.

The Climate of Arabia.

Of Arabia's climate a writer says: "The desert air is extremely dry and clear, always invigorating, and even the great heat in summer is not as insupportable as in a damper climate where the thermometer is probably lower. Climate has without doubt a great effect on the human character and intellect, and the nervous, high strung temperament of the Arab is to a great extent the creation of his environment of desert, with its splendid mirages to fire the imagination and sparkling air to keep the nerves always alert."

The Spy and the King.

The following story is told of Louis XVIII., king of France, and Fouche, who had been at one time Napoleon's minister of police: After the Bourbon restoration the king asked Fouche whether he had set spies over him during the empire. Fouche admitted that he had. "Who was the spy?" the king asked, and he was informed that it had been the Comte de Blacas. "How much did he get?" continued the king. "Two hundred thousand francs a year, your majesty." "Ah, well," said Louis, "he was honest, then, after all. I had half."

Dumas' Dramatic Intuition.

A story is told of the elder Dumas which illustrates his remarkable dramatic intuition. An eminent Parisian critic who sat beside him at a first performance noticed that he seemed abstracted.

"You are triste, my master," observed the critic.

"No," replied Dumas. "I'm not bored, but I'm somewhere else than here, so to speak. I am unable to follow any play to the end. I listen closely to the first act, and then my mind carries me off into thoughts of the play I would make of it."

The Peacock Throne.

Of all the Persian crown jewels the peacock throne is the most magnificent. It is entirely of silver, a great camp bed structure, but modeled in lovely designs. It is incrusted from end to end and from top to bottom with diamonds. At the back is a star of brilliants that makes you blink. The rug on which the shah sits is edged with precious stones, and the pillow on which he reclines is covered with pearls.

The peacock throne and its trimmings and trappings if sold in open market would bring over $15,000,000.

"Remember the Baker!"

In the courts of Venice when a prisoner is about to be condemned to death a tall and ghostly looking individual, dressed in a long black gown, walks majestically to the center of the courtroom, bows solemnly to the judge and in a cavernous voice pronounces the words, "Remember the baker!" Then he bows again and stalks away. Three hundred years ago a baker was executed in Venice for a crime of which he was not guilty. When his innocence was established the judges who condemned him gave a sum of money to the city the interest on which was to be devoted to the setting up and perpetual burning of a lamp, known as the "lamp of expiation," in the palace of the doges.

Japan's Good Roads.

Japan is peculiarly well off in respect of good highways. The Tokaido, which runs from Kioto to Tokyo, is over 300 miles in length, and, as the writer can testify, is admirably constructed. There is also the Nakasendo, which is even longer and passes through some of the finest scenery in the world. The reason of Japan's excellence in the matter of roads is that in the old days—not so very long ago—the daimios, or territorial nobles, had to journey to Tokyo once a year in order to pay their respects to the sovereign. They traveled by road, with great retinues, and if the highways were not in perfect condition feudal justice was meted out to the delinquents.—London Chronicle.

Dr. Hess Stock Food on 3 Months Trial

From the manufacturer's written guarantee and the untiring praise it is receiving from our customers we are doubly sure that it is, without a single exception, the best Stock Food or tonic ever produced and at a price that you can afford to feed it regularly.

Now here is our proposition: We will supply you with sufficient Dr. Hess Stock Food to feed your animals twice a day for three months; we will supply you with 25 lbs. or one ton, then if at the end of three months you are not absolutely sure that it has paid you to feed Dr. Hess Stock Food, that is, if your animals fed for market have not been more thrifty, your other stock in better state of health return to us the empty package and we will refund every cent you have paid us

Here are the prices:

500 lbs. for $25.00

Or 100 lbs. at the same rate, $5.00

Or 25 lb. pail at $1.60

There is not a farmer or feeder in this community that can afford to miss this liberal proposition.

GILSON'S LITTLE GIRL

By LULU JOHNSON

[Copyrighted, 1908, by E. C. Parcells.]

"My little girl," Gilson called her to himself, and of all in the human tide that twice a day swept through the gates of that section of the concourse devoted to the suburban traffic the gateman liked best the little blue eyed girl. She reminded him so strongly of that other little blue eyed girl who in a happier day had greeted his comings and goings and had called him "father."

That was before the tunnel wreck three years back, when they had carried her and her mother home—two victims of the worst disaster the road had ever known.

The claim agent had learned that Gilson was without work and had settled the damage claimed by providing him with a life position as gateman on the big station. Ever since then Thomas Gilson had watched the tide of humanity ebb and flow through the iron gates and had found solitude in the crowd.

Until the blue eyed girl had come, not quite three months before, he had watched indifferently the hurrying throng. The busy clicking of his punch kept time to the dull monotone of the announcer's megaphonic voice.

Then one night he glanced up into the face of a girl so like his own dead daughter that his punch dropped from his nerveless hands, and he held them forth yearningly if unconsciously.

The ring of the metal on the concrete pavement roused him. His hands dropped to his side, and he took up his dull routine of inspecting tickets, but the grimy train shed, with its smoke stained walls and its wastes of cinder bed tracks, held a new interest for him.

The monthly ticket which she presented was brand new and proclaimed her a recruit to the army of workers who daily took their places in the city's commercial field, and he knew that each night he should see her come hurrying down the concourse toward the gate.

Later, when she learned that the regular commuters never displayed their tickets, she would perhaps give him the little nod and smile of friendly recognition that the more experienced always vouchsafed the guardian of the gate. Gilson's memory for faces was remarkable. He knew all of the commuters by sight and had a nod for each.

It was not long before Gilson "got her trains." She came in on the 8:27, and every night she hurried to catch the 6:45. Sometimes she was late and missed that train, having to wait for the 7:58 and thereby missing also her dinner.

She never went out for dinner when she missed the earlier train, but sat in the great marble waiting room. Gilson, quick to deduce, knew that the money she earned was so sorely needed at home that she could not spare the sum that would buy an extra meal in town.

The old gateman did not go on duty until 9 o'clock in the morning, but he was always there now at 8:27, standing by the exit gate when the suburban trains came rolling in, and that was how he came to know that Metcalf was becoming interested in her.

Usually they came together down the platform, and only a glance at the girl's face was needed to tell that she liked Metcalf. Later on Metcalf took to going out on the 6:45 instead on the 6:48, which was an express and stopped only at the more important stations. No matchmaking mother ever watched the social progress of her daughter with greater solicitude than did Gilson watch the growth of love between Metcalf and Miss Traynor.

He had known Metcalf (he had learned the names on the commutation tickets) ever since he had come to the station. Metcalf seemed a nice, steady going young fellow, for he seldom waited over until the theater train, and each morning his eye was clear and his hand steady. His appearance betokened his prosperity, and Gilson rejoiced that his little girl was making so good a match.

Then came the day when the little girl came down the platform by herself, her head held high and her cheeks flaming. Metcalf lingered in the rear, and he, too, was flushed and angry. Gilson's heart was troubled, though he tried to tell himself that all would be made smooth that night.

But it was not made smooth. Metcalf did not appear until just in time for the 7:03, and there were traces of tears on the little girl's face as she passed through the gate to take the 6:45.

Once during the week they both came in by the same train, but Metcalf was in the smoker and the little girl was in the last car.

She tried very hard to look as though she did not care, but Gilson's sharp eyes could see the change, and he worried so that he let a fussy old lady take the next accommodation in the belief that it was the through express, which fact was duly reported to headquarters and resulted in Gilson's being forced to economize for a week to cover his fine.

Then came the night when the little girl, hurrying to catch her train, found the gate shut just as she approached.

"You are mean!" she cried, with a stamp of her tiny foot. "I could have made it easy."

"Orders to close the gate on signal," reminded Gilson stolidly.

"But the train had not started to move," she stormed, pointing to the tracks.

"I'm sorry"—Gilson's voice was full of apparent concern—"orders are to close the gate on signal."

"I've gone through lots of times," she reminded him. "They don't start until the passengers are all on. Often I've just made it. You used to be obliging. Now I shall have to wait for the 7:58; more than an hour. I shall report you to the office."

"Duty," murmured Gilson, trying to look properly regretful, for he saw Metcalf passing through the swinging doors of the waiting room.

"I shall report you just the same," declared the little girl as she turned away to come face to face with Metcalf.

"Lost your train?" cried Metcalf. "That is a shame! The service on this road is a disgrace. There is not another train that stops at your station for over an hour."

"I am not in the habit of discussing my inconveniences with strangers," declared the little girl, with a toss of her head, as she moved away.

Metcalf followed, and as Gilson moved over to the other gate where the express was made up he smiled in satisfaction, for had he not heard Metcalf declare that, angry or no, she must come across the street for a cup of tea and a bite to eat?

The hour had nearly expired before they came into the concourse again, and Gilson's face fairly glowed as he caught the look of happiness in their eyes.

The train had been called, and the gate was open, but the little girl did not pass through.

"You did it on purpose," she accused smilingly as she laid a gentle hand on Gilson's sleeve. "And to think that I threatened to report you! You must have thought me a little cat."

"Duty to close the gate when the signal is given," said Gilson mechanically, but the little girl saw only the twinkle in his eyes, and she raised herself upon the tips of her little patent leathers.

"It's all right again, thanks to you," she whispered. "We will be married after Easter, and you must come to the wedding."

Blushingly she hurried through the gate. Metcalf pressed the toil worn hands as he followed after, and to Gilson, watching them go down the platform through the dim of glad tears that veiled his eyes, it seemed that the clanging of bells, the hiss and roar of escaping steam and the babel of cries resolved into one grand wedding march for "his little girl."

Oddities of Alcoholism

Anecdotes of alcoholism were being narrated by a little group of physicians.

"One of my alcoholic patients steals when drunk," said a Philadelphian. "You should see the trophies he brings home. His valet is continually sneaking off of mornings with great parcels—overcoats, umbrellas, silver spoons, clocks—that his master, trembling in fear of arrest, has begged him to get rid of somehow."

"I have patients," said a New York specialist in dipsomania, "who in their intoxication steal only particular things. One man, an agnostic, steals Bibles. A woman steals gimlets. A young spinster steals baby things—little shoes and frocks, bottles and rattles, once even a perambulator."

"I had a case, an old lady," said a Kansan, "that I had worked over seventeen years—a hopeless case, it seemed. But she lost her money, and then they began to arrest her as a 'common drunk.' Well, after she had been arrested a dozen times or so the magistrate said he was tired of seeing her about and instructed the police to take her to the river whenever they found her drunk and give her a cold dip. By Jove, that cured her. Two cold dips cured her. She has been sober now, my old patient, almost three years."—Minneapolis Journal.

A World of Half Built People.

The world is full of half built people. If any one doubts this, let him or her visit a Turkish bath and note the number of people who are flat in the chest, round in the back, ponderous as to paunch and heavy in the jowl—people with outstanding shoulder blades and flat feet.

Out of a thousand people in this country there could be found scarcely three who had really fine figures. I make this statement advisedly after many years of careful observation. And why is this so? Why are there so few people in this country, in the civilized world, who have bodies that are not a travesty of him in whose image they are supposed to be created?

The reasons are many, but may be grouped under one phrase—unhygienic and unwholesome conditions of living. Among these conditions may be mentioned dietary errors—food that is excessive in quantity, variety or frequency as to meals and food taken under improper conditions either of mind or body.—W. R. C. Latson, M. D., in Outing Magazine.

How to Get Poorer Quicker.

We hear a great deal about get-rich-quick schemes, but if you want to get poor quick go into Wall street without a level head or a lot of experience, play the races, take a flier in the schemes you see advertised, in mines and oils and real estate—not that they are all bad, but most of them are not good. Some time ago a New York man discharged a valuable employee because he played the races. When asked if he thought gambling wrong, he said:

"It isn't so much that, but I am convinced that a man who would make the loose, one sided contract required by a bookmaker is not competent to take care of his own interests or those of anybody else."—Success Magazine

Quite In Character.

The late William Terriss, who for many years was invariably the hero in the dramas produced at the Adelphi theater, London, seems to have been in nice accord with the characters he played. One day, writes Ellen Terry in her book, "The Story of My Life," he came into the theater soaked.

"Is it raining, Terriss?" asked some one, who noticed that he was wet.

"Looks like it, doesn't it?" said Terriss carelessly.

Later it came out that he had jumped off a penny steamboat into the Thames and saved a little girl's life.

Long Lived Fish.

Fishes, especially the larger species, live a very long time. According to Bacon, eels live fifty years. Carp have been known to exist at least 150 years, while dolphins, sturgeons and sharks live more than a century and attain huge size. A pike caught at Kaiserslautern, Germany, in 1497 was nineteen feet long and weighed 350 pounds. It bore in its gills a copper ring with an inscription stating that it had been put in the pond of Lauten by order of the Emperor Frederick II.—that is, 261 years before.

An Impossible Combination.

They were talking of the strange sights to be seen in a great city, and one man paid his tribute to New York. "I don't believe one of you could think of any combination of circumstances that hasn't at some time occurred on the streets there," he said.

"I reckon I know of one that's never occurred there," said Hiram Fowle.

"What's that?" asked the other.

"I guess," said Hiram slowly, "that you've never seen nor ever will see a brass band going in one direction an' the heft of the folks going the other."—Youth's Companion.

The Climate of Arabia.

Of Arabia's climate a writer says: "The desert air is extremely dry and clear, always invigorating, and even the great heat in summer is not as insupportable as in a damper climate where the thermometer is probably lower. Climate has without doubt a great effect on the human character and intellect, and the nervous, high strung temperament of the Arab is to a great extent the creation of his environment of desert, with its splendid mirages to fire the imagination and sparkling air to keep the nerves always alert."

The Spy and the King.

The following story is told of Louis XVIII., king of France, and Fouche, who had been at one time Napoleon's minister of police: After the Bourbon restoration the king asked Fouche whether he had set spies over him during the empire. Fouche admitted that he had. "Who was the spy?" the king asked, and he was informed that it had been the Comte de Blacas. "How much did he get?" continued the king. "Two hundred thousand francs a year, your majesty." "Ah, well," said Louis, "he was honest, then, after all. I had half."

Dumas' Dramatic Intuition.

A story is told of the elder Dumas which illustrates his remarkable dramatic intuition. An eminent Parisian critic who sat beside him at a first performance noticed that he seemed abstracted.

"You are triste, my master," observed the critic.

"No," replied Dumas. "I'm not bored, but I'm somewhere else than here, so to speak. I am unable to follow any play to the end. I listen closely to the first act, and then my mind carries me off into thoughts of the play I would make of it."

The Peacock Throne.

Of all the Persian crown jewels the peacock throne is the most magnificent. It is entirely of silver, a great camp bed structure, but modeled in lovely designs. It is incrusted from end to end and from top to bottom with diamonds. At the back is a star of brilliants that makes you blink. The rug on which the shah sits is edged with precious stones, and the pillow on which he reclines is covered with pearls.

The peacock throne and its trimmings and trappings if sold in open market would bring over $15,000,000.

"Remember the Baker!"

In the courts of Venice when a prisoner is about to be condemned to death a tall and ghostly looking individual, dressed in a long black gown, walks majestically to the center of the courtroom, bows solemnly to the judge and in a cavernous voice pronounces the words, "Remember the baker!" Then he bows again and stalks away. Three hundred years ago a baker was executed in Venice for a crime of which he was not guilty. When his innocence was established the judges who condemned him gave a sum of money to the city the interest on which was to be devoted to the setting up and perpetual burning of a lamp, known as the "lamp of expiation," in the palace of the doges.

Japan's Good Roads.

Japan is peculiarly well off in respect of good highways. The Tokaido, which runs from Kioto to Tokyo, is over 300 miles in length, and, as the writer can testify, is admirably constructed. There is also the Nakasendo, which is even longer and passes through some of the finest scenery in the world. The reason of Japan's excellence in the matter of roads is that in the old days—not so very long ago—the daimios, or territorial nobles, had to journey to Tokyo once a year in order to pay their respects to the sovereign. They travelled by road, with great retinues, and if the highways were not in perfect condition feudal justice was meted out to the delinquents.—London Chronicle.

THE carpenter work in store of M. R. Snider, of Harney, is finished.

Reason Enthroned.

Because meats are so tasty they are consumed in great excess. This leads to stomach troubles, biliousness and constipation. Revise your diet, let reason and not a pampered appetite control, then take a few doses of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and you will soon be well again. Try it. For sale at People's Drug Store. Sample free.

SURVEYS for a State road are being made in Oxford township, from New Oxford to Bittinger's Station.

A few minutes delay in treating some cases of croup, even the length of time it takes to go for a doctor often proves dangerous The safest way is to keep Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the house, and at the first indication of croup give the child a dose. Pleasant to take and always cures. Sold by People's Drug Store.

THE smoke house of Charles Hess, of Route 3, Biglerville, was destroyed by fire with meat of 4 hogs and 100 lbs. of sausage.

A Reliable Cough Medicine

Is a valuable family friend. Foley's Honey and Tar fulfills this condition exactly. Mrs Charles Kline, N. 8th St., Easton, Pa, states: "Several members of my family have been cured of bad coughs and colds by the use of Foley's Honey and Tar and I am never without a bottle in the house. It soothes and relieves the irritation in the throat and loosens up the cold. I have always found it a reliable cough cure." Peoples Drug Store.

CHARLES MAUSS, of near New Oxford, had a growth the size of a hens egg removed from his neck at York hospital.

Falls Victim To Thieves.

S. W. Bender, of Coal City, Ala., has a justifiable grievance. Two thieves stole his health for twelve years. They were a liver and kidney trouble. Then Dr. King's New Life Pills throttled them. He's well now. Unrivaled for Constipation, Malaria, Headache, Dyspepsia. 25c at The Peoples Drug Store.

Foley Kidney Pills

Are tonic in action, quick in results. A special medicine for all kidney and bladder disorders. Mrs. M. E. Fissel, York, Pa., says: "For more than two years I suffered with kidney trouble with very severe backaches and felt miserable. If I sat down for a time it was hard work for me to get up and I saw black specks floating before my eyes. Foley Kidney Pills were advertised in my home paper and I began taking them From the first I commenced to get better. My backache left me and the black specks disappeared and I am as supple now as I ever was. I give my highest praise for being cured to Foley Kidney Pills." Peoples' Drug Store.

LEVI GENTZLER, of Hafer's Mill, recently killed a hog that weighed 587 lbs, and Edward Reynolds of near East Berlin, one weighing 564 lbs.

IF troubled with indigestion, constipation, no appetite or feel bilious, give Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets a trial and you will be pleased with the result. These tablets invigorate the stomach and liver and strengthen the digestion. Sold by People's Drug Store.

JOHN F. MILLER has sold his grocery store in New Oxford to C. E. Jacobs.

AN attack of the grip is often followed by a persistent cough, which to many proves a great annoyance. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has been extensively used and with good success for the relief and cure of this cough. Many cases have been cured after all other remedies had failed. Sold by People's Drug Store.

18 hens were recently stolen from A. W. Wolgamuth, of Reading township.

Do you know that croup can be prevented? Give Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as soon as the child becomes hoarse or even after the croupy cough appears and it will prevent the attack. It is also a certain cure for croup and has never been known to fail. Sold by People's Drug Store.

DAVID MILLER, a former resident of York Springs, was badly burned at Endicott, Nev., in a gasoline explosion.

WHILE it is often impossible to prevent an accident, it is never impossible to be prepared—it is not beyond any one's purse. Invest 25 cents in a bottle of Chamberlain's Liniment and you are prepared for sprains, bruises and like injuries. Sold by People's Drug Store.

WM. P. BAKER resigned the grammar school at East Berlin to become Cashier of new bank at that place and Miss Blanche Benner takes the grammar school and Miss Carrie V. Benner the secondary school.

MAKING FARMS ATTRACTIVE

MINNESOTA WILL TRY EXPERIMENT TOWARD THAT RESULT

School Centre for Several Districts with Free Transportation of Pupils and other Advantages

Gov. Adolph Olson Eberhart of Minnesota believes he has a scheme which will stem the rush to the cities and do much toward reducing, or at least holding in check, the higher cost of living by increasing the producing class

The Minnesota Executive is an example of what America means to the young immigrant who has energy and ambition. As Adolph Olson he was born in Sweden, and came to this country when 11. His first job was helping to herd cattle on a Nebraska ranch. The next year he hired out to a farmer who was also a local preacher and who had a library. He let the boy use his books, and young Olson soon decided he wanted an education, and got it by working his way through academy and college, completing a seven years course in four years and three months.

Then he studied law, and at the age of 28 he was admitted to the bar of Mankato There were a lot of other Adolph Olsons living in the town at the same time, so the young lawyer had the courts tack Eberhart onto his name. He held several minor Government offices, and in 1903 became a State Senator. In 1907 he was elected Lieutenant-Governor, and then when Gov. John A. Johnson died, a year ago last September, he became Governor, and was elected to the post last November.

The Governor is tall, with broad shoulders, smooth shaven, and has a rapid flow of language. He came East recently and made several addresses and among other things said.

"The repopulation of rural districts and the presence or the prospect of the abandoned farm is a subject of interest not alone in New York and New England but in almost every State in the country. While the cities have gone on developing and increasing in population the rural districts have been neglected. The farmer is the foundation of all our prosperity, and the time has come when we should devote more attention to him and his surroundings. We must bring to the rural common school the vocational and industrial training that is so freely offered to the youth of our cities, but which actually reaches only a very small percentage of our population. We cannot force people back to the country unless we make country life attractive and make it an advantage for people to live away from the towns.

"In Minnesota we are attempting to build up consolidated schools. We have outgrown the district school with from five to twenty pupils. The only way to give the rural community the educational advantages of the city is to centralize a school district by uniting a number of these small institutions into one big one, and there provide teachers of practical agriculture, manual training, household economics and ways of making the country home attractive and to transport pupils who live at a distance to and from the schools.

"It is hard to get farmers to realize the advantage of this scheme, but I am about to ask the Legislature for an appropriation of not less than $100,000 as a starter, with not less than $1,000 for each school to try the experiment. Minnesota has a tremendous school fund of $27,000,000 in cash and from $100,000,000 to $200,000,000 worth of ore lands. Yet of the 441,000 pupils in our schools only 1 per cent. is reached by vocational training.

"There are 1,800 of these consolidated schools in operation in thirty-two States, and after being started as such none ever changed back into an ordinary common school. In Ohio, Indiana and North Dakota these consolidated schools have been great successes wherever established.

"There is little in family life on the average farm to-day that is attractive. Many youngsters go to the city to enjoy educational advantages they cannot get at home and the numerous attractions of the city wean them away from the farm. These consolidated school houses could be made the centre of social life for a community. Music and home decoration could be taught in them. Farmers could meet there for all their cooperative organizations and it could be the meeting place for clubs and the scene of lectures and entertainments.

"This plan would ultimately mean a lot in stemming the increasing cost of living because the principal cause of the latter is the decrease in the number of producers as compared with the increase in the number of consumers. It would make the country attractive enough for people to stay in it.

Supervision of Orchard Work in Pa.

Over eleven hundred applications have been made to Prof. H. A. Surface State Zoologist, Harrisburg, Pa., requesting him to accept orchards belonging to the applicants for the purpose of supervising or directing the proper management throughout the year, to show how to control pests, and manage the orchard in such a way as to produce the largest, most perfect and most profitable crop of fruit.

In response to these requests Prof. Surface is sending his experts into every County of the State, arranging a systematic tour of the proffered orchards in each county, in such a way to give the individual service needed.

The inspector, in every case, is a man who knows his business, and has had proper scientific training under Prof. Surface, as well as very considerable practice experience in different orchards. During the past two years the Demonstration Orchard work in Pennsylvania has proven to be such a decided success and source of revenue for the owners, that hundreds have been forced to acknowledge the value of this work, and have, therefore, applied for the assistance of the inspector to meet their own needs.

The inspector appoints a time when he will be at a designated orchard, and is there on time regardless of weather. He looks over the premises, determines whether any serious pests, such as San Jose scale, are present, and tells the owner just what to do to each tree according to its individual needs. He talks, primarily, on the subjects of spraying and pruning, and secondarily, on the entire subject of orchard management. He examines and tests spraying apparatus, suggests features of improvement, shows how it is to be used to secure the greatest efficiency in results, shows how to make and apply the best spraying mixtures, shows how trees should be pruned according to their age and individual needs, and gives a written plan for the details of the spraying, cultivation and other features of orchard management during the entire year.

As a result of this kind of work last season tens of thousands of bushels of first class fruits were added to Pennsylvania's productions, and thousands of persons are encouraged to plant more trees, either to enlarge or replace the old orchard, which in many cases has been totally destroyed by San Jose scale, or to start a commercial orchard.

The extensive nurserymen say that more trees have been planted in Pennsylvania during the past year, and more orders are now waiting to be filled in this State than in any other State in the Union. This is chiefly because of the activity of the persons officially engaged in advancing the interests of orcharding in this State, with special reference to the suppression of pests and the production of perfect fruits. It has recently been proven that Pennsylvania can produce the finest fruits of the world, and acting upon this knowledge orcharding is going forward with tremendous bounds.

The orchard inspector not only makes examination of the Supervision Orchards but he also holds evening meetings in convenient halls or school houses throughout the County, discussing the subject of spraying, and other features of orcharding, with illustrations. Hundreds of these meetings will be held during the remainder of the winter, and as they will be for the one evening only, persons in the vicinity where they are held should lose no opportunity to attend them. Announcement of the exact place and time of meeting will be made by local posters and through the local press.

This week the inspectors and demonstrators are attending the great fruit growers' meeting in Harrisburg, and are receiving further instructions from their chief, Prof. Surface, in order that they can be equipped with the latest and best practical information, which they, in turn, carry to all rural districts of our State. This is ideal and important service of which every farmer should avail himself.

City of the Dead.

A tribute to Rev. Fr. Hayes, Pastor of St. Francis Xavier's Church, Gettysburg, Pa. who has beautified The "City of the Dead."

O silent "City of the Dead"—when last
My lightest foot-prints, marked thy mellow sod,
The withered grass was overgrown, its verdure past,
Few the flowers which bent their heads by wind swaying nod,
To beg a sign of recognition, from all who entered there,
For those who sleep in silence deep, perhaps in some neglected mound,
To bend their knee in holy faith, and say a fervent prayer,
Not for the poor frail bodies, now mouldering in the ground,
But for the dear immortal soul, which to each one was given.
To be their blest companion in this world of bitter strife,
O Holy Church of Faith! Thy teachings lead to Heaven!
Kneel thou and pray that everlasting peace and life,
Be granted them.
They bore the Cross,
With bitter loss.
Compassionate Heart of Jesus, hear!
Ave Maria—bend thou thine ear,
And our God of justice, supplicate,
That in mercy to their souls, he open wide the gate
Of blessed, sweet companionship, where all the heavenly host,
Sing songs of praise forever, to Father, Son and Holy Ghost.

O silent "City of the Dead" again I seek the home
Of those, who in the sign of Faith repose, and sleep the sleep of peace.
What wondrous change is this which cheers my spirit lone,
And seems to speak with loving tones, bidding all sorrow cease!
The gate is opened wide, and its welcome, holds no dread,
The grass is green with beauty, and lovely flowers bloom,
And shed their sweetest fragrance, in the "City of the Dead,"
As if to cheer with gladness, the pathway to the tomb.
Kind heart so full of sympathy, for bodies weak and frail,
Has banished withered grass and weeds, which spoke no welcome voice,
To those who see with earthly eyes, but wait the Master's "Hail,"
To come to Him, and be at home, where His children all rejoice.
Rest be granted them,
They bore the Cross,
With bitter loss.
Compassionate Heart of Jesus, hear!
Ave Maria, bend thou thine ear,
And our God of justice, supplicate,
That in mercy to their souls, He open wide the gate
Of blessed, sweet companionship, where all the heavenly host
Sing songs of praise forever, to Father, Son and Holy Ghost.

HAPPY WOMEN.

Plenty of Them in Gettysburg and Good Reason for It.

Wouldn't any woman be happy,
After years of backache suffering
Days of misery, nights of unrest,
The distress of urinary troubles,
She finds relief and cure?

No reason why any Gettysburg reader should suffer in the face of evidence like this:

Mrs. S. W. Culp, 423 S. Washington Street, Gettysburg, Pa., says: "I have still greater faith in Doan's Kidney Pills today than when I publicly recommended them two years ago. I found them to be an excellent kidney medicine. A member of my family had kidney trouble, as the result of an attack of the measles. Backache caused much suffering and there were pains in the side which made lifting an impossibility. The kidney secretions were also too frequent in passage. Doan's Kidney Pills were finally procured at the People's Drug Store and their use was followed by great relief I advise anyone afflicted with kidney complaint to give Doan's Kidney Pills a trial."

For sale by dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's and take no other.

No Man is Stronger Than His Stomach

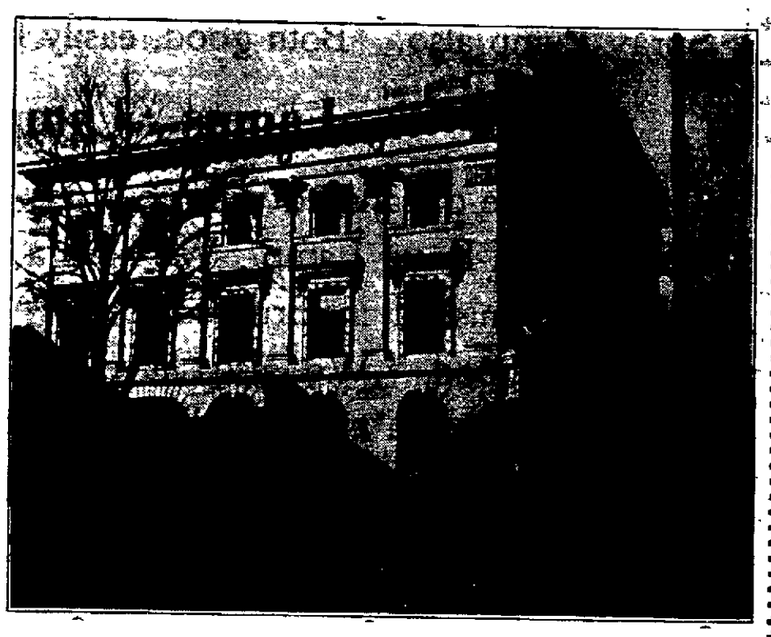

A strong man is strong all over. No man can be strong who is suffering from weak stomach with its consequent indigestion, or from some other disease of the stomach and its associated organs, which impairs digestion and nutrition. For when the stomach is weak or diseased there is a loss of the nutrition contained in food, which is the source of all physical strength. When a man "doesn't feel just right," when he doesn't sleep well, has an uncomfortable feeling in the stomach after eating, is languid, nervous, irritable and despondent, he is losing the nutrition needed to make strength.

Such a man should use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It enriches the blood, invigorates the liver, strengthens the kidneys, nourishes the nerves, and so GIVES HEALTH AND STRENGTH TO THE WHOLE BODY.

You can't afford to accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this non-alcoholic medicine of KNOWN COMPOSITION, not even though the urgent dealer may thereby make a little bigger profit. Ingredients printed on wrapper.

Endowment Campaign for College.

The Lutheran Observer of Jan. 27 editorially presented the matter of the endowment campaign for Gettysburg College as follows:

As our readers will have noted in the article by President Granville, the campaign to raise $300,000 for Pennsylvania College, which he has undertaken by the authority of the Board of Trustees, and with their hearty endorsement, is not an attempt to do something merely for the sake of doing it. The amount to be collected at this time has not been fixed arbitrarily and for reasons too vague for statement. It is based upon a careful analysis of immediate needs. These needs are: Increase in salaries of the present instructors; the enlargement of the teaching force; purchase of new books for the library; additions to the equipment, imperatively required by reason of the two new engineering courses to be instituted at the beginning of the next collegiate year; and repairs to the various buildings.

It would be difficult to appraise the relative importance of these things. To put in the forefront the need of increasing the salaries of the present professors is simply an act of justice. Nothing along this line has been done for years, notwithstanding President Granville is able to testify, after being connected with two other Lutheran colleges and two of the largest universities of the country, that he "has never known a more devoted or efficient corps of college instructors than those at Pennsylvania College." During all these years, while their salaries have remained stationary, the cost of living, as every one knows, has steadily advanced. We have been pleading with congregations to take account of these conditions and increase their pastors' salaries. Between three and four hundred of them have done this, to their lasting honor. It is time that the faithful, hard-working professors in our colleges, whose situation is precisely that of our pastors in this respect, be remembered and that justice be done them.

If Pennsylvania College is not to advance but undergo slow decline, then, of course, the other features of the proposed program may be allowed to drop. But if it is to move forward, as the interests of the Church imperatively require and as its alumni and friends enthusiastically believe and demand, then additional instructors must be procured and the equipment must be enlarged. An attempt to prove this is unnecessary. A mere statement of the fact is enough. Its truth is on the face of it.

In addressing himself to the task of conducting a campaign for $300,000 Dr. Granville is actuated by a simple sense of responsibility to the institution over whose destinies he has been called to preside and to the Church which it serves. It is no holiday excursion which he has proposed to himself, but an arduous enterprise in which he has a right to anticipate that he will have the sympathy and co-operation of all friends of the College. He is not deterred by the difficulties in the way. He is enthusiastic and optimistic. He has faith in the future of Pennsylvania College. He sees its possibilities and believes that they can be made actual. What he has already accomplished is a happy augury. Scarcely six months have passed since his taking office, and yet in that short time he has been able to announce that he has secured an endowment for a new chair of Engineering. The major part of this has come from a liberal Methodist layman of Harrisburg, Pa., Mr. Burton F. Blough, and the professorship will appropriately bear his name.

We bespeak for President Granville the open door as he goes his rounds He is not representing himself but the cause of higher Christian education and the interests of the Church that has founded and fostered Pennsylvania College, and which has, in turn, been so nobly served by it.

Adams County Woman Hurt.

A runaway accident occurred shortly before noon Saturday, Jan. 21 in York, in which Mrs. John Reeser, of Bermudian, Adams county, was thrown from the wagon and sustained a badly sprained left leg, besides other contusions about the body. The delivery team of Charles B. Norbeck & Son, wholesale grocers, which figured in the accident, was badly damaged. John H. Norbeck had driven the team to his home, on West Jackson street, and left the horse standing in front of the house while he was eating his dinner. During his absence the horse started and ran west on Jackson St. and collided with the team belonging to Mr. Reeser, which was standing in front of a grocery store. The Norbeck team struck the Reeser wagon, upsetting it and throwing Mrs. Reeser into the street. The woman held on to the lines and kept the horses from running away. Both teams were badly damaged and in the accident Mrs. Reeser sustained a badly sprained leg.

Wives of Great Men.

Wives of great men oft remind us we can make our homes sublime, and the ages gone behind us leave upon the scroll of time, lessons that we should remember—things all women ought to know. Every spring and in September they will clean house high and low, and the task is one that's wearing on the hands, and knees, and mind, how to make that labor lighter there's advice of every kind, but to make housecleaning easy, you should use upon your floors, this world-famed Chi-Namel Varnish, it is also good for doors. The large quantity of Chinese Oil in Chi-Namel makes it less absorbent than ordinary varnishes, consequently more easily kept clean—samples of Chi-Namel finish. Sold by J H. Colliflower.

Republican Opinion of Champ Clark

The Democratic caucus has given the people a sample of the next Democratic Speaker's policy, and it is reassuring. Mr. Clark undoubtedly could have retained the power, as Speaker, of naming the House committees He has voluntarily put it aside An experiment, to be sure; but it is an experiment the people wish to see tried Mr. Clark proposes to satisfy the popular will in such a matter. It will at least be impossible during the next Congress to denounce him as a "czar." Champ Clark intends to be a presiding officer, not a tyrant. When the experiment shall have been completed—and one long session of Congress should sufficiently test it—public opinion may be depended upon to decide concerning its merits.

It is Mr. Clark's policy to start the Democratic Ways and Means Committee early upon their work next winter in revising the tariff, and he is already so successful as a leader that the committee is now named and unofficially ready for business The Clark idea of separate bills for the revision of separate schedules has much to commend it, in view of the fact that the Senate and Presidency remain under Republican control. Senator Bailey has the other idea—full revision or nothing—but Senator Bailey will no run the House.

For the present, at least, no conspicuous blunders have been made. Mr. Clark shows courage and a capacity for leadership that are promising. Up to date even Fitzgerald, of Brooklyn, follows him—a triumph, surely.—Springfield Republican.

Story of Two Old Gettysburg Homes

Two of the first built houses in Gettysburg are being entirely metamorphosed. They are on York Street, on which the first building was erected, the Gettys house, which was destroyed by fire some years ago, long occupied by the Doersom family, in the rear of the Globe Hotel. These other two houses, the one on the south and the other on north side, were both built of logs in the beginning of the nineteenth century, by Christain Culp, the great grand-father of Reuben H. Culp, who occupies the lot adjoining one of them, the Thompson-Montfort lot, which has been purchased by William Henry Aughinbaugh, and who is putting an entire new front in it, with large windows and half glass front door. What will some of the Battlefield guides do now as they pass along with tourists, for an interesting narrative as to this relic? The other house was long occupied by the Schick family, beginning with parents of J L. and Andrew Schick, and has been recently purchased by Lieut. Philip Long Houck, who has built to it an addition in the rear, with porches, a swell window on the second story and porch in front, and modernized the interior. The march of progress has proceeded along York Street, as well as elsewhere in Gettysburg, and the ancient houses are disappearing. Christain Culp, the builder, died Sept. 22nd, 1838. George Culp, farmer, Henry Culp, blacksmith, Daniel Culp, cabinet maker were sons. The logs of these two houses, above the ground are in perfectly sound condition and the buildings as now renovated will make comfortable homes for many more years.

James Gettys conveyed the lot on the south side to John Blair of Emmittsburg, on the 22nd of November, 1788, when what is now Gettysburg, was in Cumberland Township, York County.

New Orleans Wins First Round.

New Orleans won the first round of the fight for the location of the Panama exposition when the exposition committee of the house by a vote 9 to 6, decided in favor of that city as the site of the fair to celebrate the opening of the Panama canal in 1915.

After long consideration of the claims of the two cities the committee voted the report favorably on New Orleans and authorizing the selection of a board of commissioners; the making of a government exhibit and the like.

No appropriation for the pecuniary aid of the New Orleans fair is authorized. It is understood, however, that the committee will favor an extensive government exhibit, to cost approximately $1,000,000.

The bill was referred to a sub committe for perfection and the bill will be favorably reported to the house, where the New Orleans-San Francisco fight will be renewed.

Work of Carnegie Institution.

"Andrew Carnegie's gift of an additional $10,000,000 last week to the institution which bears his name will redound to the benefit of humanity with compounded interest in all the years to come," said Dr. Robert S. Woodward, president of the Carnegie Institution, recently. Dr. Woodward is delighted with the ironmaster's latest benefaction in the name of science, but said that ten times the amount would not suffice to complete the scope of work which has been outlined for the future.

Dr Woodward said that the Board of Trustees would probably outline some general plan for the expenditure of the funds, but that there are so many channels to which it can be turned with incalculable benefits that it is almost impossible to outline a positive scheme for its use.

The institution employs 500 scientists, who are scattered over 40 countries, from Patagonia to Iceland. All of these, Dr. Woodward says, could use more funds than are available. The organization maintains more than 50 separate plants, including laboratories, observatories and workshops of all sorts. Its pennant flies from ten Surprise Party.

A very enjoyable surprise party in the form of a handkerchief shower, was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C C. Collins on Tuesday, evening, Jan. 10, in honor of their son Warfield's birthday. The evening was spent in playing games, music and social conversation. An interesting feature of the occasion was the dining room in which was the table groaning under the weight of all the delicacies of the season to which all did ample justice. At a reasonable hour all returned to their respective homes wishing Mr. Collins many more such happy birthdays. Those present were Mr. and Mrs C. C. Collins, Mr. Wolfort, Warfield Collins, Mervin Bucher, Howard Schwartz, Norman Conover, Guy Appler, Arthur Taughinbaugh, Roy Foulk, Guy Sherman, Amos Collins, Ivan Snyder, Kary Sentz, Lloy Snyder, ver, Addison Wherley, Lloy Snyder, Evan Appler, Russell Reaver, Maryland Appler, Mark Sherman, Preston Snyder, Norman Appler, Clarence Collins and Jennings Collins; Misses Bessie Collins, Elsie Sherman, Margie Foulk, Beulah Sherman, Edna Wherley, Gertrude Keefauver, Clara Appler, Laura Wolfort, Elsie Appler, Belle Strickhouser, Lizzie Appler, Bernette Rhinehart, Rena Collins, Frances Appler, Anna Collins, Ruth Rudisill, Mary Collins, Bessie Sherman, Margie Snyder, Effie Appler. MONTAGNAIS INDIANS.

They Are Hunters In the Strictest Sense of the Word.

During nine months of the year—fall, winter and spring—the Montagnais Indians of Canada spend their lives in the "bush," hunting and trapping for pelts and meats. Then in June they rendezvous at the particular Hudson Bay company post where they belong, trade off their hunt and settle down for rest and recreation until the middle of August, when they are off again for the winter. They have absolutely nothing to do with the cultivation of the soil, being hunters in the strictest sense of the word. The Indians who hunt about Lake Mistassini form a subtribe by themselves, having the same name as the lake, and their summer rendezvous is at the Hudson Bay company post on the lake. Those who hunt south of Mistassini on the shores and tributaries of the Ashuapmonchouan river bear the name of that stream. Those on the Nekonba river bear its name, and those who hunt nearer Lake St. John are known by the Indian name of that lake, Pikonagami. All of these bands rendezvous on the west shore of Lake St John, at Pointe Bleue, where the government has set aside a reserve and attempted to colonize the hunters and teach them to become farmers. East of Lake St. John is the Chicoutimi band, now much reduced, and southeast of them the Tadousac band, both of which are to be found distributed over the French Canadian districts of the same names. There are several other bands farther down toward the gulf of St. Lawrence.—Southern Workman.

Bridled Brides.

Western brides have an easier time than their Abyssinian sisters. On the occasion of her marriage an Abyssinian bride has to change her skin From ebony she has to become cafe au lait. To accomplish this the expectant bride is shut up in a room for three months. She is covered with woolen stuff, with the exception of her head; then they burn certain green and fragrant branches. The fumes which they produce destroy the original skin, and in its place comes the new skin, soft and clear as a baby's. The elders of the family feed the young woman with nutritive forcemeat balls.—Cape Colony Argus.

Senator Herbst on State Legislation.

Following is an interview with State Senator Herbst published in the "Reading Herald":

"After two weeks with the present legislature I am convinced that never before has the so-called Republican machine of Pennsylvania been so well equipped to do what it pleases. Hitherto during my ten years' experience there has always been a cohesive aggressive minority even if at times small, yet always alert and fighting together for principles, policies and measures for the public good.

"This year the minority, small enough, if it should work together, presents the deplorable condition of a camp divided against itself, three or four squads, almost more intent upon knifing each other than upon facing a solid front to the enemy. This, of course, would be merely a pitifully ridiculous spectacle were it not for the fearful consequences to the people of the State which may follow.

"In the present weakened condition of the minority there is no reason why and vicious legislation contemplated shall not be pushed through with well oiled smoothness and ball-bearing celerity.

"Rippers under the plausible guise of commission government. Bond issues as an excuse for good roads. Increased taxation to be called by the title of equalization of taxation. School codes ostensibly for the betterment of what we all favor, in reality to add a State school machine to the already all powerful political machine, and increase the taxation of the people already overburdened by authorizing additional loans. Increase in the force of office holders and State inspectors who already are as numerous as the proverbial locusts of Egypt, increase in the salaries of these and our few overworked judges, half of whom are dying of ennui, and the inhalation of salt air at Atlantic City; these are a few things only of what may be expected judging the future by the past.

"Pinch bills—what a field for these among the ambitious embryonic statesmen who will only be too happy to introduce them, and who have been so placid on committees that they will consider it a great honor to fight for them, while the shrewd old managers of the machine will innocently rake in the shekels to kill them. These will be fine campaign contributions not mentioned in the Roberts' Corrupt Practices law.

"I have some hope that after a little more reflection Democrats, Keystone Democrats and Keystone Republicans, may lay aside their personal politics and get together on public policies and measures. At present the outlook is dark. I do not know whither we are going, but I do know that we are going and may it be towards a better understanding is my earnest wish.

"As to the Democratic party in Pennsylvania I have learned through inquiry from all sections of the State that radical reorganization is necessary. It dare not be delayed if the county tickets in most of our few remaining Democratic counties are to be saved this fall. It is not a question of who is to be blamed, or who is not to be blamed. It is a condition of affairs that cannot be denied. Our State organization as at present constituted has lost the confidence of the rank and file. The State committtee should meet promptly and resignations should be made patriotically and men of the standing and calibre of Congressman Palmer should be given the helm. I believe in the principles of my party, and in persons, am not a hero worshipper, and therefore, hope that the Democratic party in Republican Pennsylvania will again be so marshalled as to become at least a respectable minority party ready to keep step with its triumphant brethren in other states."

Decorated by Kaiser

Word has reached Mrs. John O. Evjen, wife of the professor of church history in Augsburg seminary, Minneapolis, formerly professor of English Bible at Gettysburg College that Emperor William II has conferred upon her father, Wilhelm Kretschmann of Berlin, the "Preussicher Kronenorden Vierte Klasse." Receiving this order is a rare distinction. Mr. Kretschmann has an international reputation as a horticulturist and is the possessor of twenty-five other medals, has spent much of his time in beautifying the park in which is located the Pankow school, one of the largest educational institutions of Berlin. The event took place at the dedication of the school, which was erected at a cost of 4,000,000 marks.

EAST BERLIN.

Elder C. D. Bonsach of Union Bridge, Maryland, started a series of meetings last Sunday evening in the Brethren meeting house. The meetings will continue every evening for two weeks. E. L. S.

Utterly Wretched

Nervous Prostration Long Endured Before Remedy was Found.

Miss Minerva Reminger, Upper Bern, Pa., writes: "For several years I had nervous prostration, and was utterly wretched. Board of Health Organizes.

The Board of Health organized last week for the new year. The Board is composed of Dr. J. P. Dalbey, Dr. Henry Stewart, F. Mark Bream, Geo. E. Stock and Harry B. Bender.

The following officers were elected: President, F. Mark Bream; Secretary, Dr. Henry Stewart; Medical Inspector, Dr. J. P. Dalbey; Health Officer, Wm. Wavel.

The new official in the Board is the medical inspector and is a required appointee of the State Board of Health. His duty will be to visit and make personal inspection of all places where any communicable disease is suspected to exist.

—It is to be hoped that the ground hog to-morrow Thursday will be a lineal descendant of last years species, so much of an ignoramus that he couldn't tell what the weather was going to be when he saw his shadow.

—The Y. W. C. T. U. will meet with Miss Louise Stahle, Thursday at 7 o'clock. P. M.

THE HARVEST OF DEATH

Lutheran church of Littlestown. The funeral was held on Tuesday of last week, services being conducted by the Rev. John Jay Hill, interment in Mt. Carmel cemetery, Littlestown. He leaves a wife, two daughters and a son, Mrs. Geo. L. Welsh of York, Miss Annie O., and Joseph C. Yount at home. He is also survived by three sisters and two brothers, Mrs. Adam Stump of York, Miss Sadie Neff of Summit Hill, Pa., Mrs. H. S. Benner, formerly of Gettysburg, David H. Yount of Washington, D. C., and E. M. Yount of Herndon, Va.

WM. FRANCIS ROBINSON, eldest son of Augustus F. and Cecelia Weaver Robinson, died at his home along the Littlestown road in Oxford township, near New Oxford, on Saturday morning, Jan. 21, after a lingering illness from pulmonary tuberculosis, aged 23 years, 1 month and 21 days. He is survived by his parents and a number of brothers and sisters. The funeral was held Monday of last week, interment being made in the Catholic cemetery after a High Mass of Requiem in the Church of the Immaculate Conception, Rev. Father Smith officiating. Deceased was a member of the B. V. Sodality.

JACOB B. HEIGES of York, died on Jan. 19, from burns received from the flames flaring out of a furnace door and igniting his clothing at the York Chemical Works. He was a native of Adams county and aged 67 years. The funeral was held on Monday of last week and interment made at the Lutheran Bermudian church. He leaves a wife and six children.

DAVID A. DICE died suddenly at his home in York on last Wednesday. At the close of the noon meal he was seen to fall forward and physicians being summoned pronounced death as due to heart trouble. He was a well known artist of York. He was a prominent member of the York Art Club, his contributions to the club being the best on exhibition in the club's rooms. He was a frequent contributor to the York papers and the evening before he died he arranged with the 'York Gazette' for a series of articles on "Democracy in Government," in which he was a strong believer. He came of a Franklin county family and married a Miss Smiley of this county. His wife is a sister of J. A. Smiley of Gettysburg and J. M. Smiley of East Berlin. Mrs. M. S. Yohe, Mrs. Milton Remmel and Miss Margaret Smiley of this place attended the funeral on last Saturday. Deceased leaves a wife and one son, W. A. Dice, in charge of the book department of the Wiest Department Store, York.

MISS SARAH ELLA GILLILAND died at her home in this place on last Wednesday morning after a short illness in her 70th year. She was born in Straban township, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Flemming Gilliland. She spent the greater part of her life in this place where she had many friends The funeral was held on last Friday afternoon, services being held in the Presbyterian church by Rev. D. W. Woods, and interment in the Evergreen cemetery. She is survived by one brother, Samuel Gilliland of Straban township.

JAMES HELLER of Butler township, died last Saturday morning aged 90 years and 3 months. He is survived by one son, George, of Bendersville, and one daughter, Miss Ellen, at home. His funeral was held Monday morning at 10 o'clock, interment at Arendtsville, his pastor Rev. D. T. Koser conducting the service.

MISS LUCY A. CRUM of near Brysonia, died last Wednesday, aged 79 years, 2 months and 17 days. She is survived by one brother, Amos L. Crum, of Bendersville. Her funeral was on Saturday morning at 9.30 at the house, interment at Arendtsville, Rev. T. C. Hesson, her pastor, preaching the sermon. She had her home with her brother John, who died two months ago.

EMANUEL S. STAMBAUGH, after an illness of six days, died at his home, in Penn township, York county, Thursday, Jan. 26, from a complication of diseases. He was aged 76 yrs. Deceased is survived by his wife; six sons—Henry and Emanuel S. R. Stambaugh, of Berwick township, Adams county; Lewis, of Hagerstown, Md.; Adam, of Bradford, Pa.; George, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y, and Emory, of Penn township; two daughters—Mrs. Amelia Laughman, of Berwick township, Adams county, and Mrs. Mary Mummert, of Penn township. He is also survived by two brothers, Henry Stambaugh, of Smith's Station, York Co., and Amos Stambaugh, of Astoria, Illinois, and two sisters, Mrs. Samuel Wildasin and Mrs. Cecelia Meckley of Hanover. Funeral Monday, Jan. 30. Interment in the cemetery at Bair's Meeting house.

MISS RHUHANNA ROHRBAUGH, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Rohrbaugh, of Littlestown, died at her home in York Saturday, Jan. 21st, from Bright's disease, aged 38 years, 5 months and 19 days. The remains were taken to Littlestown the following Monday and the funeral service held Monday afternoon. Interment at Christ Church, Rev. F. S. Lindaman, D. D., officiating. She is survived by her parents, two sons, several sisters and brothers.

JACOB GRINER, died on Saturday night, Jan. 21st, at the home of his sister, Mrs. Crum, of Tyrone township from a paralytic stroke, aged 65 years. The funeral services were held last Tuesday morning with interment at the Upper Bermudian church, Rev. Harvey Bickle conducting the services. He was a bachelor and is survived by four sisters and one brother, Mrs. Crum, Tyrone township; Mrs. Bolen, Gardners station; Mrs. Cleavers, Carlisle; Mrs. William Cully, York and Silas Griner, of the west.

HARRY CASHMAN, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Cashman of Aspers, died last Wednesday, aged 15 years, 11 months and 14 days. The funeral was on last Saturday, interment at Biglerville. He is survived by his parents and one sister, Ruth Cashman.

WILLIAM R. BEATTY of Baltimore died on Monday at the advanced age of 83 years. His life was typical of many Americans. He started in life as a poor boy working at the Catoctin Furnace in Frederick County, Md. Having learned the iron trade he started a foundry in Baltimore, became a successful business man of that city and accumulated considerable wealth. He was attached to this part of the country and when he began to take life easy he came here and bought a farm on the western slope of Keckler's hill, spending many summers here and always speaking delightedly of this country. He was very interesting man and was highly respected not only in the business world of Baltimore but by every one who knew him in this county. He leaves several children, among them a son Harry J. Beatty of West Middle St. this place.

Resident Painfully Bruised

Miss C. M. W. Foster of this place, who has been making her home this winter with Mr. and Mrs. George Meyer of Morrellville, near Johnstown, has been suffering considerable pain the past few days, says a recent issue of the Johnstown Democrat, as a result of an injury sustained in an unusual manner, Using a second match when lighting a small gas stove in her room an accumulation of the inflammable stuff exploded. The resultant burst of flame frightened Miss Foster, and in jumping backwards she fell against a metal bed. The physicians in attendance found nothing more serious than bruises. Miss Foster is a noted W. C. T. U. worker and has been engaged in temperance activities all her life.

—The College Minstrels on last Tuesday evening proved a success, and as it was the first entertainment of the kind ever given by the college boys will likely be an annual feature of College life.

—Miss Annie Danner has gone to visit friends in Baltimore.

...The Leaders...

WE are getting ready for our annual Inventory, which begins in a week or ten days. Going over the entire stock now, getting out the odds and ends of everything—making new prices on much that must be sold before stock taking. It is so much easier to count actual money than it is to count figures on a book.

It is impossible to give much of an idea here of what we are willing to do to get our stock in condition—unless you visit the store you cannot fully know. Every department shows lots of goods at lowest prices. We can only name a few items here.

About 25 Woman's and Misses' Coats, Castor and Tan Kersey, a few Blacks, carried over from 1909 and 1910, were $7.50 to $15.00, your choice for $3.00.

About 50 Children's Coats, sizes 8 to 12 years. An opportunity for money saving for another year, if you feel that you cannot get full worth out of them this season. Good heavy cloths, variety of colors.

Were $3.00 to $4.00 at $1.50
Were 4.00 to 6.00 at 2.50
Were 6.00 to 7.50 at 4.00

We have gone over our big stock of Muslin Underwear (not made up for a White Sale) and taken from it all that was in any way mussed from handling or showing, and have put on it a quick selling price which will save you a full fourth and more on Gowns, Corset Covers and Muslin Drawers, (No Skirts).

Ladies' Suits, still quite an assortment, all of which have had a heavy price cut, but we have taken out of them a lot of about 25 Suits, Manish materials and Fancy Worsteds, were $20 to $22.50 and made the price $5, $6, $7.

All the balance of our Newest Black and Colored Suits—One Half Price

About 12 Black and Oxford Kersey Coats. Specially cut for short stout women, sizes ranging from 41 to 50 inch bust measure, to be closed at $8.90.

About 12 Elegant, 50 inch long, Seal Plush Coats, at a mark down to—

$16.50 from $25.00
18.50 from 27.50

Beautiful lining, Elegantly made, Mostly Large Sizes

A Few Heavy Fancy Cloth Coats, One-Half Price.

About 20 Black Net covered over Taffeta Waists, were $5.75, $6.50 to $7.00, good styles and a fair assortment of sizes—except 36—at $2.98 and $3.98.

Black Taffeta and a few Messaline Waists, (a manufacturer's samples). Elegantly made, just in, sizes 34, 36 and 38. For early comers as there will be no more. Prices $1.98 $2.19. Worth double that price.

The Ready-to-Wear Department is full of Marked Down Goods of every Character

Special Prices on Entire Stock of Black Petticoats until February First. Such as

$1.25 goods for 90 cts.
2.00 goods for $1.50 and so on.

Big Doe Run to Death by Dogs.

John Fritz, of near Cashtown, rescued a large doe from dogs, which had chased it out of South Mountain, and placed it in his stable. Unfortunately, the pretty animal died soon afterward from the wounds inflicted by its pursurers. As soon as Mr. Fritz saw the nearly exhausted and frightened animal he drove off the dogs, which were strange ones and had evidently come some distance. It is believed that they are the same as those which have been killing deer for the past few weeks in the Caledonia region. The doe was placed in the stable by Mr. Fritz and State Game Commissioner Kalbfus informed. He instructed Mr. Fritz to dispose of the animal as he saw fit in case it died. The deer had been badly bitten and bruised and after it died, the carcass was buried.

GILSON'S LITTLE GIRL

By LULU JOHNSON

[Copyrighted, 1908, by E. C. Parcells.]

"My little girl," Gilson called her to himself, and of all in the human tide that twice a day swept through the gates of that section of the concourse devoted to the suburban traffic the gateman liked best the little blue eyed girl. She reminded him so strongly of that other little blue eyed girl who in a happier day had greeted his comings and goings and had called him "father."

That was before the tunnel wreck three years back, when they had carried her and her mother home—two victims of the worst disaster the road had ever known.

The claim agent had learned that Gilson was without work and had settled the damage claimed by providing him with a life position as gateman on the big station. Ever since then Thomas Gilson had watched the tide of humanity ebb and flow through the iron gates and had found solitude in the crowd.

Until the blue eyed girl had come, not quite three months before, he had watched indifferently the hurrying throng. The busy clicking of his punch kept time to the dull monotone of the announcer's megaphonic voice.

Then one night he glanced up into the face of a girl so like his own dead daughter that his punch dropped from his nerveless hands, and he held them forth yearningly if unconsciously.

The ring of the metal on the concrete pavement roused him. His hands dropped to his side, and he took up his dull routine of inspecting tickets, but the grimy train shed, with its smoke stained walls and its wastes of cinder bed tracks, held a new interest for him.

The monthly ticket which she presented was brand new and proclaimed her a recruit to the army of workers who daily took their places in the city's commercial field, and he knew that each night he should see her come hurrying down the concourse toward the gate.

Later, when she learned that the regular commuters never displayed their tickets, she would perhaps give him the little nod and smile of friendly recognition that the more experienced always vouchsafed the guardian of the gate. Gilson's memory for faces was remarkable. He knew all of the commuters by sight and had a nod for each.

It was not long before Gilson "got her trains." She came in on the 8:27, and every night she hurried to catch the 6:45. Sometimes she was late and missed that train, having to wait for the 7:58 and thereby missing also her dinner.

She never went out for dinner when she missed the earlier train, but sat in the great marble waiting room. Gilson, quick to deduce, knew that the money she earned was so sorely needed at home that she could not spare the sum that would buy an extra meal in town.

The old gateman did not go on duty until 9 o'clock in the morning, but he was always there now at 8:27, standing by the exit gate when the suburban trains came rolling in, and that was how he came to know that Metcalf was becoming interested in her.

Usually they came together down the platform, and only a glance at the girl's face was needed to tell that she liked Metcalf. Later on Metcalf took to going out on the 6:45 instead on the 6:43, which was an express and stopped only at the more important stations. No matchmaking mother ever watched the social progress of her daughter with greater solicitude than did Gilson watch the growth of love between Metcalf and Miss Traynor.

He had known Metcalf (he had learned the names on the commutation tickets) ever since he had come to the station. Metcalf seemed a nice, steady going young fellow, for he seldom waited over until the theater train, and each morning his eye was clear and his hand steady. His appearance betokened his prosperity, and Gilson rejoiced that his little girl was making so good a match.

Then came the day when the little girl came down the platform by herself, her head held high and her cheeks flaming. Metcalf lingered in the rear, and he, too, was flushed and angry. Gilson's heart was troubled, though he tried to tell himself that all would be made smooth that night.

But it was not made smooth. Metcalf did not appear until just in time for the 7:03, and there were traces of tears on the little girl's face as she passed through the gate to take the 6:45.

Once during the week they both came in by the same train, but Metcalf was in the smoker and the little girl was in the last car.

She tried very hard to look as though she did not care, but Gilson's sharp eyes could see the change, and he worried so that he let a fussy old lady take the next accommodation in the belief that it was the through express, which fact was duly reported to headquarters and resulted in Gilson's being forced to economize for a week to cover his fine.

Then came the night when the little girl, hurrying to catch her train, found the gate shut just as she approached.

"You are mean!" she cried, with a stamp of her tiny foot. "I could have made it easy."

"Orders to close the gate on signal," reminded Gilson stolidly.

"But the train had not started to move," she stormed, pointing to the tracks.

"I'm sorry"—Gilson's voice was full of apparent concern—"orders are to close the gate on signal."

"I've gone through lots of times," she reminded him. "They don't start until the passengers are all on. Often I've just made it. You used to be obliging. Now I shall have to wait for the 7:58; more than an hour. I shall report you to the office."

"Duty," murmured Gilson, trying to look properly regretful, for he saw Metcalf passing through the swinging doors of the waiting room.

"I shall report you just the same," declared the little girl as she turned away to come face to face with Metcalf.

"Lost your train?" cried Metcalf. "That is a shame! The service on this road is a disgrace. There is not another train that stops at your station for over an hour."

"I am not in the habit of discussing my inconveniences with strangers," declared the little girl, with a toss of her head, as she moved away.

Metcalf followed, and as Gilson moved over to the other gate where the express was made up he smiled in satisfaction, for had he not heard Metcalf declare that, angry or no, she must come across the street for a cup of tea and a bite to eat?

The hour had nearly expired before they came into the concourse again, and Gilson's face fairly glowed as he caught the look of happiness in their eyes.

The train had been called, and the gate was open, but the little girl did not pass through.

"You did it on purpose," she accused smilingly as she laid a gentle hand on Gilson's sleeve. "And to think that I threatened to report you! You must have thought me a little cat."

"Duty to close the gate when the signal is given," said Gilson mechanically, but the little girl saw only the twinkle in his eyes, and she raised herself upon the tips of her little patent leathers.

"It's all right again, thanks to you," she whispered. "We will be married after Easter, and you must come to the wedding."

Blushingly she hurried through the gate. Metcalf pressed the toil worn hands as he followed after, and to Gilson, watching them go down the platform through the film of glad tears that veiled his eyes, it seemed that the clanging of bells, the hiss and roar of escaping steam and the babel of cries resolved into one grand wedding march for "his little girl."

Oddities of Alcoholism

Anecdotes of alcoholism were being narrated by a little group of physicians.

"One of my alcoholic patients steals when drunk," said a Philadelphian. "You should see the trophies he brings home. His valet is continually sneaking off of mornings with great parcels—overcoats, umbrellas, silver spoons, clocks—that his master, trembling in fear of arrest, has begged him to get rid of somehow."

"I have patients," said a New York specialist in dipsomania, "who in their intoxication steal only particular things. One man, an agnostic, steals Bibles. A woman steals gimlets. A young spinster steals baby things—little shoes and frocks, bottles and rattles, once even a perambulator."

"I had a case, an old lady," said a Kansan, "that I had worked over seventeen years—a hopeless case, it seemed. But she lost her money, and then they began to arrest her as a 'common drunk.' Well, after she had been arrested a dozen times or so the magistrate said he was tired of seeing her about and instructed the police to take her to the river whenever they found her drunk and give her a cold dip. By Jove, that cured her. Two cold dips cured her. She has been sober now, my old patient, almost three years."—Minneapolis Journal.

A World of Half Built People.

The world is full of half built people. If any one doubts this, let him or her visit a Turkish bath and note the number of people who are flat in the chest, round in the back, ponderous as to paunch and heavy in the jowl—people with outstanding shoulder blades and flat feet.

Out of a thousand people in this country there could be found scarcely three who had really fine figures. I make this statement advisedly after many years of careful observation. And why is this so? Why are there so few people in this country, in the civilized world, who have bodies that are not a travesty of him in whose image they are supposed to be created?

The reasons are many, but may be grouped under one phrase—unhygienic and unwholesome conditions of living. Among these conditions may be mentioned dietary errors—food that is excessive in quantity, variety or frequency as to meals and food taken under improper conditions either of mind or body.—W. R. C. Latson, M. D., in Outing Magazine.

How to Get Poorer Quicker.

We hear a great deal about get-rich-quick schemes, but if you want to get poor quick go into Wall street without a level head or a lot of experience, play the races, take a flier in the schemes you see advertised, in mines and oils and real estate—not that they are all bad, but most of them are not good. Some time ago a New York man discharged a valuable employee because he played the races. When asked if he thought gambling wrong, he said:

"It isn't so much that, but I am convinced that a man who would make the loose, one sided contract required by a bookmaker is not competent to take care of his own interests or those of anybody else."—Success Magazine

Quite In Character.

The late William Terriss, who for many years was invariably the hero in the dramas produced at the Adelphi theater, London, seems to have been in nice accord with the characters he played. One day, writes Ellen Terry in her book, "The Story of My Life," he came into the theater soaked.

"Is it raining, Terriss?" asked some one, who noticed that he was wet.

"Looks like it, doesn't it?" said Terriss carelessly.

Later it came out that he had jumped off a penny steamboat into the Thames and saved a little girl's life.

Long Lived Fish.

Fishes, especially the larger species, live a very long time. According to Bacon, eels live fifty years. Carp have been known to exist at least 150 years, while dolphins, sturgeons and sharks live more than a century and attain huge size. A pike caught at Kaiserslautern, Germany, in 1497 was nineteen feet long and weighed 350 pounds. It bore in its gills a copper ring with an inscription stating that it had been put in the pond of Lauten by order of the Emperor Frederick II.—that is, 261 years before.

An Impossible Combination.

They were talking of the strange sights to be seen in a great city, and one man paid his tribute to New York. "I don't believe one of you could think of any combination of circumstances that hasn't at some time occurred on the streets there," he said.

"I reckon I know of one that's never occurred there," said Hiram Fowle.

"What's that?" asked the other.

"I guess," said Hiram slowly, "that you've never seen nor ever will see a brass band going in one direction an' the heft of the folks going the other."—Youth's Companion.

The Climate of Arabia.

Of Arabia's climate a writer says: "The desert air is extremely dry and clear, always invigorating, and even the great heat in summer is not as insupportable as in a damper climate where the thermometer is probably lower. Climate has without doubt a great effect on the human character and intellect, and the nervous, high strung temperament of the Arab is to a great extent the creation of his environment of desert, with its splendid mirages to fire the imagination and sparkling air to keep the nerves always alert."

The Spy and the King.

The following story is told of Louis XVIII., king of France, and Fouche, who had been at one time Napoleon's minister of police: After the Bourbon restoration the king asked Fouche whether he had set spies over him during the empire. Fouche admitted that he had. "Who was the spy?" the king asked, and he was informed that it had been the Comte de Blacas. "How much did he get?" continued the king. "Two hundred thousand francs a year, your majesty." "Ah, well," said Louis, "he was honest, then, after all. I had half."

Dumas' Dramatic Intuition.

A story is told of the elder Dumas which illustrates his remarkable dramatic intuition. An eminent Parisian critic who sat beside him at a first performance noticed that he seemed abstracted.

"You are triste, my master," observed the critic.

"No," replied Dumas, "I'm not bored, but I'm somewhere else than here, so to speak. I am unable to follow any play to the end. I listen closely to the first act, and then my mind carries me off into thoughts of the play I would make of it."

The Peacock Throne.

Of all the Persian crown jewels the peacock throne is the most magnificent. It is entirely of silver, a great camp bed structure, but modeled in lovely designs. It is incrusted from end to end and from top to bottom with diamonds. At the back is a star of brilliants that makes you blink. The rug on which the shah sits is edged with precious stones, and the pillow on which he reclines is covered with pearls.

The peacock throne and its trimmings and trappings if sold in open market would bring over $15,000,000.

"Remember the Baker!"

In the courts of Venice when a prisoner is about to be condemned to death a tall and ghostly looking individual, dressed in a long black gown, walks majestically to the center of the courtroom, bows solemnly to the judge and in a cavernous voice pronounces the words, "Remember the baker!" Then he bows again and stalks away. Three hundred years ago a baker was executed in Venice for a crime of which he was not guilty. When his innocence was established the judges who condemned him gave a sum of money to the city the interest on which was to be devoted to the setting up and perpetual burning of a lamp, known as the "lamp of expiation," in the palace of the doges.

Japan's Good Roads.

Japan is peculiarly well off in respect of good highways. The Tokaido, which runs from Kioto to Tokyo, is over 300 miles in length, and, as the writer can testify, is admirably constructed. There is also the Nakasendo, which is even longer and passes through some of the finest scenery in the world. The reason of Japan's excellence in the matter of roads is that in the old days—not so very long ago—the daimios, or territorial nobles, had to journey to Tokyo once a year in order to pay their respects to the sovereign. They traveled by road, with great retinues, and if the highways were not in perfect condition feudal justice was meted out to the delinquents.—London Chronicle.

Many of our town people are complaining because of malicious depredations committed by the boys and young men, both from town and out of town. Would it not be wise for our council to think of building a substantial lockup and employing a policeman, and then have the rogues attended to. These practices have certainly been carried on too long for the peace and welfare of the town to be passed by unnoticed by those in authority.

L. M. Buehler Successful.

After a great deal of effort and correspondence L. M. Buehler the popular druggist has succeeded in getting the Dr. Howard Co. in making special half price introductory offer on the regular fifty cent size of their celebrated specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia.

This medicine is a recent discovery for the cure of all diseases of the stomach and bowels. It not only gives quick relief, but makes permanent cures.

Headaches, coated tongue, dizziness, gas on stomach, specks before the eyes, constipation, and all forms of liver and stomach trouble are soon cured by this scientific medicine.

So great is the demand for this specific that L. M. Buehler has been able to secure only a limited supply, and every one who is troubled with dyspepsia, constipation or liver trouble should call upon him at once, or send 25 cents, and get sixty doses of the best medicine ever made, on this special half price offer with his personal guarantee to refund the money if it does not cure.

Elma B. Smith Co.

The entertainment of the Elma B. Smith Co. in Brua Chapel on next Tuesday evening, Feb. 7th, comes highly recommended and will unquestionably be greeted by a large audience. The company is made up of a combination of rare artists in their lines. Miss Elma B. Smith is said to be the greatest imitator of children, birds and animals now before the public. Miss Andrus has charmed audiences all over the country with her singing. Miss Ruth Bowers is an acknowledged wonder as a violinist, accompanied by a charming stage presence, and Miss Agnes V. Ambrose is an accomplished pianist. Don't fail to hear them.

Col. Benchoff's House Burned

The old familiar structure erected years ago and occupied by the late Col. W F. Benchoff, at Charmian, was burned to the foundation Monday morning of last week. The loss is about $4000; partially insured. Of late years it had been occupied by its present owner. Frank L. Tracey, a relative of the late Col. Benchoff, who, with his wife and one grandchild, were living in the house at the time. It is thought that the fire caught from the chimney and a few moments later the building was in flames. The fire alarm promptly brought out the Charmian fire brigade which rendered valuable assistance. Nearly everything of value within the house was saved with the exception of the furniture and contents of one room and other articles that were in the cellar.

Eddie Plank and Athletics

Connie Mack, the manager of the Athletics, returned home last week from his European honeymoon with his wife and immediately got busy with baseball affairs. In an interview he said he did not expect to make any changes in his team this year. He said he "never stood pat, I am always in the market for a little something new. I have not given my pitching staff a single thought since the last Cub was put out. Bender, Plank, Coombs, Dygert, Morgan and Krause will hold their own. Three of my players have been married since I have been away. This leaves only Oldring, Strunk and Plank unmarried and there is no telling when they may join the majority and take unto themselves a wife." Manager Mack is making arrangements to take 35 players to Savannah on the southern trip.

UNIQUE STORIES OF PENNSYLVANIA CRIME

Startling Series of Readable Articles For North American Readers

That "truth is stranger than fiction" is no empty saying is apparently to have strong exemplification in a series of articles soon to be published in Sunday issues of the Philadelphia North American. The first will appear next Sunday, February 5.

Under the general caption, "Pennsylvania's Greatest Crime Mysteries," one of the articles will appear each week. Crimes that have been the talk of counties for years will be attractively presented, with a view of bringing out the noteworthy features rather than to repeat the horrible details.

Each article will be clothed with the charm of graphic presentation and will read as engagingly as the works of the writers of the great detective stories.

The articles will have historical value in that they will present in concise and complete form the facts that became known piecemeal at the time of the occurrences treated. The series will be of especial value to those who are making a study of criminal law and to those who study the causes and consequences of crime.

The first article of the North American series will deal with "The Murder Mystery of Baer's Woods," the crime that ranks as the most mysterious in the history of Chester county—one in which two men gambled for high stakes, a life and a fortune on the table.
